Chamber Calling Meet On Police Chief's Dismissal

President Orders Big Underground A-Test Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy has ordered a sharp expansion in U.S. underground nuclear testing which is not banned by the tri-power treaty now awaiting Senate ratification, the Defense Department revealed today.

Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric made the disclosure in a 10-page letter giving the Senate Armed Services Committee "extensive assurances" that every possible safeguard will be observed against risks which the treaty admittedly entails."

The pact — signed by the United States, Britain and Russia and more than 75 other nations—bans only tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, wrote the committee separately. He said the chiefs "consider that the actions described in Gilpatric's letter meet the requirements, as presently foreseen, for implementing the safeguards proposed by the joint chiefs to reduce the risks and disadvantages of the treaty."

Gilpatric also promised improved intelligence and test detection procedures, a readiness-to-test-in-the-atmosphere plan which would permit their resumption within two to six months, depending on the type of experiment, and a program which he said would keep good scientists actively at work in U.S. weapons laboratories.

Details of the underground test buildup were supplied to Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga), chairman of the committee, in a third document, a classified "index."

CAN THIS CROSS THE PACIFIC?

Charles Von Loewenfeldt of 230 Forbes Avenue, San Rafael, does not plan to try it. But the little sailboat is capable of a Pacific crossing in 90 days. It is an exact replica (down to the last scratch) of the boat in which Kenichi Horie bobbed from Japan to San Francisco last year. Loewenfeldt bought it from a Japanese firm, which made the replica for a filming of Horie's adventures. Loewenfeldt has it berthed at Loch Lomond Harbor to use as a "family boat" for his six children. The craft is actually brand new, but note the scratches on the side and the name "Mermaid" almost blotted out for a true reproduction of the original.

Marin City Man Cut 11 Times In Razor Fight

Sheriff Holds Wife On Assault Charge; 100 Stitches Used

A 54-year-old Marin City chauffeur was slashed 11 times with a straight edge razor and received 100 stitches at San Rafael General Hospital last night following an explosive fight at his home with his wife.

William Wells of 79 Cole Drive, Apartment 11, was listed in satisfactory condition this morning by hospital spokesmen. He had driven under his own power from Marin City to San Rafael for treatment following the domestic fight at 9:33 p.m.

Booked in Marin County jail two hours later was Mrs. America Wells, 50, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. She was held in lieu of $525 bail. The weapon apparently used, according to sheriff's reports, was a black handled, straight edged razor with blade five-eighths inch in width.

Mrs. Wells, who is described as five feet one inch tall, told Sheriff's Deputy James L. Current, she and her husband, who is four inches taller, weighing 150 pounds, had an argument earlier that evening. He had left the apartment "in an angry mood," she said.

For protection, according to the Sheriff's reports, she locked the front door, including safety chain, and concealed in a towel her husband's razor on a table next to where she was sitting.

Upon returning, Wells forced his way through the door, breaking the safety chain, she said, and started to hit her. He also knocked her down, which is when she pulled the razor.

The fight stopped abruptly, according to reports, when Wells realized how bady he was bleeding and left for medical treatment. On the way to San Rafael, he nearly collided with a Sheriff's Deputy, Ray Tschirgi, who escorted him the rest of the way.

He told Tschirgi he had entered the apartment to find his wife waiting for him with the razor. He was treated for cuts from 14 inch wounds on the chest to two-inch slashes on the jaw.

Sausalito's Manager Brown Hit In Bjorklund Statement

Sausalito Chamber of Commerce will meet in special session Tuesday afternoon at the Alta Mira Hotel to discuss the firing of Police Chief Howard Goerndt.

"This time Charlie Brown's gone too far," said A. Leonard Bjorklund, president of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce. Bjorklund said the Chamber of Commerce is set for 1:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Attorney Harry Wainwright said he will appeal the firing of Chief Goerndt to the Sausalito Board of Appeals and charged the city council with being "mesmerized" by City Manager Brown, who fired Goerndt.

The Aug. 7 letter from Brown, firing the chief effective Oct. 6, charged a "weakness in leadership" as one reason of dismissal.

"At this time, there's no charge against Goerndt," said Wainwright. "Lack of growth is not a reason to fire a man. There are no facts they can allege as a reason for dismissing him.

"The council could tell Brown to shape up, but they all work in San Francisco. They have delegated most of their authority to the city manager and have let him mesmerize them," Wainwright said.

Mayor Paul Micou, however, defended Brown's action and said any appeal will go directly to the Board of Appeals, a group of five citizens appointed by the council. The decision of the Board of Review is final, said Micou.

"It ought to be made clear the city council was completely aware of this," Micou added. "The council believes in the city manager form of government. Brown has the authority and responsibility to hire and fire — including department heads."

VAULTER GOES OVER 17 FEET; 'IT FELT EASY'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — John Pennel broke through pole vaulting's 17 - foot barrier today with a magnificent leap of 17 feet, three-fourths inch, then failed in an effort to send the mark higher.

The handsome Miamian from Northwest Louisiana State College broke the world mark on his first attempt.

"It felt easy," Pennel said as several hundred hometown well-wishers crowded around him to offer congratulations.

Mine Escape Hole Past First Phase

SHEPPTON, Pa., Aug. 24 (UPI) — Rescue workers completed the first phase in widening an escape shaft to two miners trapped underground and decided on a 17½-inch drill to dig the rest of the way.

They had halted the 26-inch drill at the 38-foot mark shortly before noon to confer about the use of a 17½-inch or 24-inch drill to widen the remainder of the 12-inch, 308-foot escape shaft.

Experts expect to bring up David Fellin and Henry Throne in a metal capsule late tomorrow night.

"We are not going to rush the drilling," said state mines chief H. Beecher Charmbury. "Safety is ahead of speed. From all indications, the men are comfortable down there and why take chances."

Charmbury said the rescue workers "are tired, but they're not concerned with themselves —they're concerned only with the men underground.

Rescuers were lining the first 38 feet of the expanded shaft with metal tubing to prevent a cave-in. The resumption of drilling was to start upon completion of that task.

53RD RUNNING OF DIPSEA SET TOMORROW

The 53rd running of the historic Dipsea Race will be tomorrow, starting at Lytton Square in Mill Valley, 10 a. m., and finishing at Main Street in Stinson Beach.

At least 123 participants will start the 6.8 mile trek out of Mill Valley and over Mount Tamalpais, one of the hardest long distance courses in the country. For details and pictures of past Dipsea races, see sports.

Mill Valley Tax Rate Set Up 32 Cents

The Mill Valley City Council today set a tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation, a jump of one penny from the $2.29 anticipated at their last meeting.

Mayor Joseph E. Sheeks said the added cent will provide for a $25,000 repair job on a bridge on Summit Avenue and free other revenue for use in helping residents set up assessment districts to repair streets. A group on Del Casa Drive has indicated interest in improving the drive, he said.

The $2.30 rate, 32 cents higher than last year's rate of $1.98, is broken down as follows: General fund, 99 cents; sewer operation and maintenance, 27½ cents; parks, playgrounds and recreation, 28 cents; library, 30 cents; city employees pension plan, 24½ cents; bond interest and redemption, 20 cents, and drainage control, one cent.

"We put five cents more in the general fund than anticipated to put aside funds for vehicle replacement and building a fire substation. To make up the difference, we dropped two cents from the bond interest fund and four cents from drainage control, which we found we didn't need," said Sheeks.

San Quentin Art Draws Thousands

San Quentin's annual Arts and Crafts Festival was an artist's dream come true.

Thousands of persons were flocking to the prison today to view the works of inmate artists. It was estimated that in the first two hours of the show, about 1,000 persons viewed the exhibits.

Paintings were rapidly vanishing from the walls with purchases, amounting to more than $2,000, made in the first hour.

Saigon Police Arrest U.S. Photographers, Search Cars

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Vietnamese police, in a mounting wave of anti-Americanism, have begun searching official U.S. cars. They arrested three American newsmen and photographers today with a shout of "to Hell with Americans."

Student unrest against the government mounted hourly, and 1,000 of them, led by Buddhist ex-Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau, demonstrated against the government for the second consecutive day. Police did not interfere but the government closed the schools.

The U.S. embassy protested to the government against the search of cars which was concentrated on those of the U.S aid mission next door to the ransacked Xa Loi Pagoda stormed early Wednesday by police and soldiers at start of the buddhist repression.

Soldiers have been searching American cars entering and leaving the mission compound. It was believed they were looking for anything that may have been passed out from the pagoda during Wednesday's melee in which hundreds of priests were beaten and arrested.

The car of U.S. aid director Joseph L. Brent was searched Thursday over his protests and American sources said the search of the cars of U.S. officials was still going on. Two Buddhist monks who leaped into the mission compound to escape arrest in the pagoda are still taking refuge in the mission.

Soldiers meanwhile arrested two American photographers and a newsman for taking pictures of the noisy anti-government demonstration today by the defiant university students. They were photographer Larry Burrows and reporter Milton Orshevsky of Life Magazine and Magnum photographer Burt Glinn.

An army captain ordered their arrest after soldiers failed to stop them taking pictures by jostling and shoving. A witness said the soldiers were reluctant to arrest the three men and told their superior, "but they are Americans."

"To hell with Americans," the captain shouted.

President Ngo Dinh Diem today appointed Truong Cong Cuu, coordinating secretary of state for cultural and social affairs, as acting foreign minister to fill in for foreign minister Mau who resigned for "reasons of ill health,"

The government has refused to accept Mau's resignation and instead granted him a three-months leave of absence and permission to make a pilgrimage to India.

LEAVES BY BUS

Marin County's 'Delegate' Goes To Washington March

Marin County's "delegate" to the March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom left at noon today on a three-day bus ride to Washington to take part in Wednesday's march.

Officials in San Francisco who have organized transportation for Bay Area marchers said that Max Beagarie Jr. of 404 Marin Avenue, Tamalpais Valley, was the only Marin resident making the trip.

Beagarie, 18, was to carry a sign on the march supplied by the Marin Committee for Fair Play. He said the sign was to have the names of groups in the county active in civil rights work.

The idea to take the trip came from Beagarie's brother Claude, a member of the Direct Action Committee in San Francisco. Beagarie said, "It was too bad Claude didn't have the $70 for the bus trip."

Beagarie figures that, "I might as well go. I won't get the opportunity to see the country for as cheap as this again."

He is also interested in the "struggle for equality." Most of all, Beagarie supports the aims of the march which call for a $2 minimum wage and equal opportunity for employment.

Beagarie, who hasn't been able to find work since graduating from Tamalpais High School in June, said, "The biggest problem is finding work. And I know that."

"Full employment is necessary. It is not only a problem for Negroes. It is my problem too and I feel the responsibility to do something about it."

Valuation Jump Helps School Tax Rate Cuts

Tax rates for two-thirds of Marin's elementary school districts have dropped for the 1963-64 fiscal year.

The increase of 14 per cent in the county's assessed valuation (excluding utilties) was given credit for the drop in rates by county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Of the 22 elementary school districts in the list compiled in Mitchell's office, only seven show an increase in taxes this year over the previous year.

The greatest increase was in the Tomales Bay Union District, up 38 cents to $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation. Greatest drop was in the Novato Unified District, 57 cents to a $4.12 rate.

(But the Novato Unified District is the only one in Marin which combines elementary and high school in one district under one board and under one tax rate. Comparable tax rates for other areas can be found by adding local elementary rates and high school district rates).

Districts whose rates rose this year generally are those in which assessed valuations remained relatively stable in relation to rising budgets; in other districts, assessed valuation generally climbed more than budgets, so lowering taxes.

Districts showing an increase in rates were the Tomales district; West Marin, up 22 cents to $2.16; San Jose, up 18 cents to $3.07; Ross, up 7 cents to $2.44; Bolinas - Stinson Beach school district, up 7 cents to $1.33; Point Reyes, up 5 cents to 49 cents; Laguna, up 2 cents to 81 cents.

The greatest drop in an elementary district rate was in San Rafael where the district's $2.12 rate is down 28 cents from the previous year.

The rates of the San Rafael High School district also dropped, bringing the rate to $1.58, down 19 cents. Taxes of the Tamalpais High School district rose one cent to $2.21. Taxes of the Tomales High School District rose three cents to $1.36. The College of Marin rate remained at 77 cents.

Rates of other districts are: Dixie, $3.03, down 19 cents; Kentfield, $2.96, down 11 cents; Reed, $2.83, down 15; Mill Valley, $2.78, down 9; Larkspur, $2.73, down 2; San Anselmo, $2.61, down 3; Lagunitas, $2.46, down 7; Fairfax, $2.41, down 24; Sausalito, $2.38, down 6; Nicasio, 84 cents, down 23; Union, 83 cents, down 3; American Valley, 80 cents, down 2 cents; Lincoln, 68 cents, down 21 cents.

Arbitration Bill Draws Demo Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight Democratic senators took issue today with some provisions of a compulsory arbitration bill approved by the Senate Commerce Committee to cover disputes threatening a national rail strike.

The eight, including committee chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), said they oppose a section which would force arbitration of what they called "secondary issues" if the railroads and operating unions failed to reach agreement on them voluntarily.

The measure is expected to be brought before the Senate Monday in an effort to get congressional action to beat the midnight Wednesday strike deadline.

It provides for settlement of major issues by a special seven - man board. If minor disputes are not resolved by bargaining they, too, would be turned over to the board.

Hope For Rescue Of Miner Dims

WHITEHORSE, Y. T. (AP)— Hope that a 20-year-old miner would be found alive continued to dim today as rescue teams entered their fourth round - the - clock shift at the United Keno Hills mines site, 220 miles north of here.

Desmond Loughran was trapped when an excavation collapsed at the 900-foot level about midnight Tuesday. Rescue squads used picks and shovels to dig through the rock but were forced to stop and erect timbers every foot to prevent further falls.

Two miners near him at the time of the fall escaped injury. The mine produces lead, zinc and silver.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Rowdy Conference

HONOLULU (UPI)—The 16th annual National Legislative Conference ended yesterday after the longest, rowdiest plenary session in its history during which delegates refused to take a stand on three states rights-proposed amendments to the U.S. constitution.

Instead the conference delegates voted for a so-called compromise resolution which left it up to the individual state legislatures to "make independent determination" as to the merit of the proposed amendments aimed at weakening the directional power of the Congress over the states and overriding decisions of the U.S. supreme court.

At one point California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh threatened to caucus his delegation on a motion to withdraw from the conference unless the disputed amendments could be debated and voted on.

Anderson Backs Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. George W. Anderson Jr., recently retired Chief of Naval Operations, gave qualified support to the limited nuclear test ban treaty yesterday.

Like his former colleagues on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Anderson, now ambassador to Portugal, conditioned his approval on certain safeguards.

"He said we must remain vigilant, strong and maintain our system of military alliances and bases," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., reported after Anderson testified in secret to the Senate Preparedness subcommittee.

Waves Peril Surfers

MALIBU (UPI)—More than 300 persons were rescued yesterday when waves 8 feet high thundered ashore from the Pacific Ocean causing riptides at Southern California beaches, lifeguards reported.

Authorities said swimmers and surfers from Malibu to Newport Beach were jeopardized by the heavy swells and riptides, which carried some swimmers 300 yards offshore before they were rescued.

Rights 'War Dance'

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—A group of Indians who were "tired of watching other people get the jobs" staged a civil rights "war dance" yesterday in front of the Douglas County Courthouse.

The Indians, led by Charles Springer, were from the Omaha tribe at Macy, Neb., about 75 miles north of here.

Three Bluff Way Over Berlin Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Three East Berliners bluffed their way to the Berlin Wall, then scrambled over it safely under Communist gunfire, West Berlin police said today.

Two of the men were given hospital treatment for wounds caused by barbed wire but none of the three was hit by border guard bullets. The three men, aged 20, 28, and 31, escaped shortly after 8 p.m. last night.

One of the men was a bulldozer driver working in a construction site on the East Berlin side of the wall, near a walled-off bridge leading to the American sector district of Neukoelln.

After quitting time last night he returned with two friends. All three were wearing working clothes and they carried a case of tools.

They told the East German patrol they were repairing the bulldozer.

Robbery Search Turns To Rome

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard detectives today pursued a fast-living racing driver known as "The Weasel" in their efforts to solve Britain's 7.3 million dollar train robbery.

This morning police flashed an alert for Roy J. James, 28, nicknamed "The Weasel," who was believed driving north in a British-made miniature car capable of speeds up to 100 mph.

The Weasle

The police in Rome said Scotland Yard had asked them to search for James and two other men—Bruce Reynolds, 41, and James E. White, 43—for questioning about the robbery.

A restaurant waiter in Rome, Gianfranco Laudoni, told police he served three men and said he believed they had knowledge about the theft. The Rome police said they were told James arrived in the Italian capital "a few days ago" in a French car bearing Rome license plates.

Cut-Off Bill Revised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy's controversial proposal to allow federal agencies to withhold funds from local programs where discrimination exists has been revised to include the right to appeal a cut-off to the courts.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy yesterday presented the revised measure to the Senate Judiciary Committee headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.). Its wording now emphasizes the ending of discrimination, not merely cutting off federal assistance.

Dick Gregory Freed

CHICAGO (UPI)—Negro comedian Dick Gregory was free today after an 11-day stay in the Bridewell House of Correction for taking part in demonstrations against mobile classrooms on Chicago's South Side.

Gregory, who commands $4,000 a week for nightclub performances, was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge. He chose to stay in jail instead of signing a recognizance bond which would have freed him.

Another 'Bury' Speech

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev predicted today Communist mass production would team up with the workers of the world "to bury capitalism."

"Victory will be ours and the greater our production the greater will be our victory," the visiting Kremlin leader told 1,000 cheering shipyard workers under a broiling sun at this Adriatic port.

Doukhobors' Funeral

AGASSIZ, B.C. (UPI)—The 500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors camped outside the federal prison here are planning a martyr's funeral for a 22-year-old convicted Freedomite terrorist who died yesterday after a 32-day hunger strike.

Paul Podmoroff, one of 112 Freedomites adhering to the fact in protest against their imprisonment on arson and bombing charges, died in Chilliwack Hospital after being rushed there early yesterday with two other men.

Aid Cut Prediction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois predicted today the Senate may sustain a 585-million-dollar foreign aid cut voted by the House, a slash President John F. Kennedy called "short-sighted, irresponsible and dangerously partisan."

Schools Bar Children

COLUMBUS, Miss. (UPI)—About 1,000 children of personnel at the Strategic Air Command base here have been barred from attending public schools in Columbus.

The children were barred by the city schools board after two Negro airmen mailed letters requesting transfer of their children to white schools.

BANK HOLDUP ARREST

Music Stops In Small Town As Police Nab Bandleader

JACKSON, Mo.—(UPI) Richard Burton Partridge, a small town "Music Man" beloved by school children and townsfolk alike, strode to the podium for the finale of a gay nighttime concert on the courthouse lawn.

In a blaze of lights, he brought down his baton and the municipal band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The crowd rose to its feet, all eyes on the conductor in his natty band uniform.

A federal agent, a county sheriff and two state policemen also rose. With them were witnesses to two unsolved bank robberies.

"We waited until the music stopped," said Cape Girardeau County Sheriff John Crites. Then the lawmen stepped up and arrested Partridge for armed holdups that netted $22,419.

Partridge, who directed both the high school and municipal bands, confessed to the robberies last night, less than 24 hours after he was arrested.

This little southeast Missouri town was stunned.

"I can't believe it," said R. O. Hawkins, superintendent of the school where Partridge headed a band and music program involving 800 boys and girls.

"It's upset the whole town," said Crites. "Most kids in town thought a lot of him."

"You won't find any neighbors to say anything," said Mrs. Harold Bollinger, who lives across the street from the rambling, eight-room Partridge home.

"We still refuse to believe it . . . it's hard for us to believe," said band vocalist Allan Rowland, a close friend of Partridge. "We were both broke all the time, he was just as broke as I was . . . or I thought he was."

Partridge, 38, and the father of five children, "quickly confessed to the two robberies when police uncovered about $7,000 in loot from secret hiding places, Crites said.

The bandmaster kept saying "I don't know anything about it" until he was confronted with the money, the sheriff said. He was charged with a $12,782 robbery of the Bank of Chafee, Mo., and a $9,637 holdup of the bank of Advance, Mo.

Authorities said an estimated $7,100 loot was found in a safety deposit box in a band uniform locker at Jackson High School. Other bills and a fully loaded revolver believed to be the one used in the holdups were found hidden in the dashboard of Partridge's automobile.

Police said the cache at the high school also contained a piece of paper with initials on it which a bank employee slipped into packages of money handed over to the gunman in the Chaffee robbery.

Partridge became a suspect when it was noticed he no longer drove his white station wagon, a model similar to the vehicle used in the Chafee robbery, authorities said.

Trieste Dives Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bathyscaph Trieste dived to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean yesterday in the first of a new series of descents in search of the nuclear submarine Thresher.

Guard Acquitted On Forgery Count

A former San Quentin Prison guard, accused of being a part of a big payroll check forgery ring, was found innocent of the charge yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

A jury of eight women and four men acquitted Robert W. Minor, 29, after two and one-half hours of deliberation yesterday afternoon. The trial, before Judge Thomas F. Keating, had lasted for three weeks. Benjamin Dreyfus, Mill Valley attorney, defended Minor.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles L. Convis contended that Minor was part of a conspiracy to print $125,000 worth of phony payroll checks inside the prison, then smuggle them out for circulation.

Jury Foreman James Percy Stuart of Marinwood, who read the "not guilty" verdict, said the jurors took three ballots.

The first ballot found nine for acquittal, two for conviction and one neutral. The second ballot went 11 to 1 for Minor, and the third was unanimous.

Minor was arrested last Sept. 12 with two inmates, Antonio Bucaloy, 30, and Robert Gillette, 30. Bucaloy and Gillette, serving time for assault, pleaded guilty to the check forgery conspiracy and were sentenced to six months to 14 years in prison.

Three New Firms File Papers For Incorporation

Incorporation of three new Marin enterprises was announced by California Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan yesterday. The corporations on file in his office are:

Coloma Development Corp., a real estate firm, with stock listed at $50,000. Directors are Martin I. Zankel of San Francisco, Marvin B. Starr and Sandra J. Shapiro, both of Oakland.

P. M. V., Inc., a firm for the manufacture of beauty cosmetic cases, with stock listed at $25,000 Directors are Jesse and Alga Ida Hindin of 30 Suffield Avenue, San Anselmo, and Peter Daba of 57 Olive Avenue, Larkspur.

Valley School of Forest Farm, a non-profit organization for the operation of an elementary school in Forest Knolls. Location of the school in buildings now used for a summer camp has been approved by the Marin County Planning Commission. Directors are Paul Boucher and Alva d'Orgeix, both of Forest Knolls, and Kenneth Howard of 144 Bolsa Avenue, Mill Valley.

Screen Talent Set On GO Party

An array of Hollywood talent will feature a "GO-Party" being put on Sept. 5 at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds by the Republican organizations of Marin, Sonoma, Napa and Mendocino counties.

George Murphy, who originated the "GO-Party" idea four years ago, will serve as master of ceremonies. Also included among the stars who will entertain during the evening are Roger Williams, Rowan and Martin, the Andrews Sisters, the Dunhills dance group, Jane Powell, Frankie Avalon and Manny Harmon's orchestra.

Tickets may be obtained at Republican headquarters in any of the four counties.

Merchants Join Decoration Job

The Fairfax Merchants Assn. decided at its meeting Thursday to join with the Fairfax Lions Club in putting up the town's Christmas decorations this year, according to association president George Pagni.

The association also is considering a meeting with the Lions on Sept. 5 to discuss the promotion of the business and welfare of Fairfax.

The association's concern over the parking situation in the parkade has been eased, Pagni said, by regulations instituted by police chief James Orr. Henceforth, there will be all-day parking on the north side of the parkade and two-hour parking on the south side.

Auto Overturns, Man Hurt On Waldo Grade

Elton Cecchettini, 53, of San Francisco was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple cuts, bruises and scrapes after the car he was driving overturned on Waldo Grade yesterday at 7:40 p.m.

Cecchettini's car collided with a vehicle driven by Robert Ralph Kauer, 19, of 39 Crane Drive, San Anselmo, during a lane switch on Highway 101, one-half mile north of Spencer Avenue. Both cars were traveling north.

Four Boys Caught Gambling In Park

Four teen-aged boys were caught gambling with cards at Woodacre Improvement Club picnic area last Monday, Deputy Sheriff Joseph Kendricks disclosed yesterday.

He confiscated 71 cents and a deck of cards from the boys and cited them to appear before the sheriff's juvenile inspector. Two boys are 14, one is 15 and the eldest 17, all from Woodacre.

Deputy Kendricks said he has received complaints that tenn-agers have been gambling on the picnic tables to the rear of the clubhouse, and that they are setting a bad example for younger children who come to swim and watch the games.

Drunken Driving Woman Pays Fine

Francis Lucille Norton, 37, formerly of San Anselmo, paid $166 fine yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for driving while intoxicated last March 20.

Judge Harold J. Haley put her on six months probation and restricted her driving for 90 days, in addition to the fine. Miss Norton was arrested on Redhill Avenue in San Anselmo.

She lived at 86 Medway Road in San Anselmo at the time, but has since moved to Los Angeles.

Ex-Marinite Hit By Tax Arrest

Kenneth P. Moore of Danville, a former resident of San Rafael and San Anselmo, has been arrested on charges of failing to file a state income tax return for four years.

Contra Costa County District Attorney John A. Nejedly said three of the alleged violations occurred in 1960 and 1961 when Moore lived in San Rafael and in 1962 when he lived in San Anselmo.

Moore was released from the Contra Costa County jail on $2,100 bail.

Youth Stops Car, Takes Golf Bag

A youth stopped his car, walked into an open garage and helped himself to $74 worth of golf equipment and then drove off last night, Mrs. Kelma B. Brown of 7 Longwood Drive, San Rafael, reported to police.

Mrs. Brown said she saw the youth walk to his car with the equipment belonging to her husband, Carl, who wasn't home. She then called police at 10:52 p.m.

Cook Claims 3 Men Beat, Robbed Him

Three men beat him up and robbed him of a six-pack of beer in Marin City early today, a San Rafael cook complained to the sheriff.

The victim is Willie Walker of 2061 Fifth Avenue, who said the robbery took place about 1:30 a.m. on Drake Avenue. He told officers that Charles Oliver Bland, 21, House 223, Marin City, stopped his car to talk to him. Walker said Bland then reached inside the car and took the beer.

When Walker got out of the car, Bland and two other men attacked him, he complained to deputies.

Bland was booked in Marin County Jail on suspicion of strongarm robbery. He was held in lieu of $787.50 bail.

Burglar Can Gain Weight On Loot

Whoever burglarized Peters Dairy on Olema Road in Bolinas must be trying to gain weight.

He got away with 50 pints of half-and-half, 30 pounds of butter, and 75 half-pints of milk, owner Manuel Peters complained to the sheriff this week. The burglary occurred sometime last week.

Sheriff's Deputy Robert F. Bertrand said there was no sign of a forced entry. The missing lot is worth about $55.

International Adventure Underway

Guests of the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council, the girls arrived last Sunday and will break camp next Thursday.

ORGANIZED INTO two troops of three patrols each, the six patrols are each centering their activities around foreign countries. They are Japan, Italy, Latin America, France, India and China.

It comes as no surprise that San Francisco is providing the wealth of material and activities the Scouts need to absorb the culture of the country in which they are interested.

For instance on Thursday the entire camp went to San Francisco on buses where they had tea in the Japanese Tea Garden, inspected art exhibits from many countries at the de Young Museum and toured the newly refurbished aquarium. The India Patrol was particularly interested in the Natural History Museum.

FOLLOWING LUNCH in Golden Gate Park, the girls toured San Francisco visiting the areas where various culture groups have settled. Met by a group of Chinese-American Girl Scouts they took a walking tour of Chinatown where they also ate dinner. That evening they attended the "Ballet Folklorico of Mexico."

According to Mrs. Lyman Emerson, who is co-director of the camp with Mrs. Vernon Annes, it took a special station wagon to bring home the souvenirs purchased by the girls.

The India Patrol yesterday visited the Vedanta Temple in San Francisco and ate in an Indian restaurant while the Latin American Patrol toured Mission Dolores, saw the Diego Rivera murals at the California School of Fine Arts and ate in a Latin American restaurant. Time for shopping in stores representing the cultures was also provided.

MARIN COUNTY residents are also involved in the experience. On next Tuesday the French Patrol will eat at a French restaurant in San Francisco on the invitation of the owner, Claude Berhouet, who lives in Marin County.

Staff member Amrit Gailon, a native of Punjab, has led discussion groups on India, and Mitsuko Yamaguchi of Kamakura, also on the staff, has taught the art of origami to the Japanese Patrol. The Italian Patrol has heard Luigi F. Chilleri, manager of the Italian State Tourist Office, speak. Dr. Giovanni Camajani, former professor of music at the University of San Francisco, discussed Italian music.

A. K. Budhiraja, vice-consul for India, met with the entire camp to discuss India, its politics and economy and a Peace Corps film was shown with discussion led by Mrs. Russell Klein of Kentfield.

The Latin American group has participated in a song workshop.

ONE NIGHT an international dinner was held with special language tables at which only a certain language such as French or German could be spoken.

A highlight of the encampment was the arrival of a group of Scouts who were returning from Japan where they attended an Asian camp. The girls described their adventures to the "stay at homes."

TOMORROW IS a free day for the girls. The French Patrol is planning to attend Mass in French at Notre Dame de Victoire. Some will visit Muir Woods, the Sonoma Mission, the University of California. Some of them will spend the day in San Francisco.

Why Can't Pattern Makers Modernize The Measurements

By EUNICE FARMER

"I honestly think the measurements of women's sizes are incorrect. Am I wrong when I think that 90 per cent of all women have to add to the waist and hip measurements of patterns? Why can't the pattern companies change their measurements for the average size pattern and save most of us a lot of time in alterations?" —Mrs. S. K.

Dear Mrs. S. K.:

I've heard this story so often before that I would like to start a one-man (or I should say, one woman) crusade to see what can be done about these so-called average measurements. However, I'll need all of our readers' help in this project.

Please send me a card or letter telling me what pattern adjustments you have to make. I'll take the results direct to the pattern companies and perhaps we can make them realize that American women aren't as slim through the middle as they think. I can't do this without you, so please write to me today in care of your local newspaper.

"I understand that pleats can be removed from the waistline of men's trousers and finished in the new plain front. Kindly tell me how this is done and if the finished product will look like a pair of trousers originally designed without pleats."—Mrs. M. K.

Dear Mrs. M. K.:

I have checked this information with several tailors, and the answers were the same. The only way the pleats can be successfully removed from the trousers is to take the trousers completely apart, recut them, make new pockets, etc. This is a tremendous job and should only be done by a professional. Many women have made darts out of the pleats, but the legs of the trousers are still too baggy.

"When my child outgrows her sweaters, I cut off the sleeves to just above the elbow, bind the raw edges with the material to be used for the dress. The buttons and buttonholes can be removed and the fronts bound also. The length of the jacket should be just above the waist for a bolero effect. Appliques of fabric, rick-rack, lace, could be used for trimming. Children love costume-room touches in their clothes, too!

"Before cutting the sweater, may I suggest you baste a piece of hem tape on the wrong side of the sweater and machine stitch the sweater to the hem tape. This will retain the original shape of the sweater, prevent stretching and also keep the sweater stitches from running."

Mrs. S. B. tells how her 11-year-old daughter made a two-piece bathing suit (very popular this summer) from her old swim suit. She cut her nylon swim suit in half at the waist. Hemmed both the waistline and the top section, and fitted elastic in both edges.

(This would also be an excellent idea for getting extra wear from a suit that was outgrown because of length.)

"How can one estimate the length of material to be gathered when making ruffles with the sewing machine attachment? I always end up with too much ruffle left over, or not enough to fit." — Mrs. C. R. H.:

Dear Mrs. C. R. H.:

The ruffling attachment can be adjusted for more or less gathering. I would suggest making a sample by measuring the length of fabric used for the sample, and again measuring when it has been gathered. In this way you can adjust the amount of gathers in proportion to the length of fabric to be gathered.

Your Sewing Glossary—Peau de soie: A firm fabric of either pure silk or a blend of synthetic yarns. The fabric has a smooth finish with a soft luster resembling a dull satin.

Is Cheating Creative?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A schoolboy who thinks up a new way to cheat on a test is probably more creative than criminal.

At least that's what some educators think. They say creative talent often shows up in mischievous behavior which really isn't appreciated by parents and teachers. And if this creativity in children can be channeled properly, they think there would be a revolution in teaching and learning processes.

This theory is explained in a National Education Assn. report by the University of Minnesota's Dr. Paul Torrance. He said it is natural for people to learn creatively. And he thinks it's easier.

He explains in his report that the first step to creative thinking is sensing a problem.

"WHEN WE SENSE that something is missing or untrue, tension is aroused," he said, "and this tenson can be relieved only by finding the solution to the problem and communicating it."

Therefore, he maintains, original thinking is natural.

Creativity is most brilliantly obvious in scientists and artists who put forth new ideas and discoveries. In a more every day form it produces a new recipe or a new way to cheat on a test.

Dr. Torrance holds that creativity in children means a student's own ideas. It doesn't have to be new to anyone but the child who came up with an idea all by himself.

HE SAID FOUR-YEAR-OLDS most often have the most noticeable creative imaginations along with school children in first, second and third grades.

Once a child reaches the higher grades he tends to think less and less originally. Researchers now say this decline in creativity, once thought natural, is "man-made."

They put forward the following reasons for this decrease:

—Trying to limit what a child learns. This means preventing him from learning more than he is thought "ready" to absorb.

—EMPHASIZING DIFFERENCES in what boys and girls are supposed to do. For example, telling little boys not to play with dolls, and telling girls not to play baseball.

The NEA report urges teachers to encourage creative thinking. It also suggests that the classroom atmosphere be relaxed so "one thing can lead to another" in group discussions and projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Shapiro will be hosts at a barbecue tomorrow to be held at 7 p.m. at their Lucas Valley home.

Some 80 guests are expected, about half of whom will be foreign students in this country under the American Field Service's student exchange program. Other guests will be members of the American families with whom they have been living for the past five weeks.

The students, from Malaya, Laos, the Philippines and Australia, attended school in the United States and came to the Bay Area for five weeks before leaving for home.

The Shapiros have been hosts to Mila Hernandez of the Philippines.

Bridal Shower In Sausalito Follows Family Tradition

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Mrs. Frank B. Williams and her mother, Mrs. W. C. Beatie, both of Sausalito, will give a kitchen shower for Sue-Ann Blakeley at the Williams' home in Sausalito Tuesday.

Sue Ann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Blakeley, of Sausalito, is engaged to Robert James Joy, whose parents are Mrs. Foreman Thompson of Mill Valley and George Elmer Joy of Honolulu.

About 30 guests have been invited to the party, which will begin with a luncheon.

Mrs. Williams also gave a bridal shower for Sue-Ann's mother, the former Barbara Frost, as they had been neighbors for many years, and Mrs. Beatie is Mrs. Blakeley's godmother.

Some of the guests at the party for Sue-Ann will be those who attended the shower for her mother.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY LUTGENS of San Rafael are flying east to attend the wedding of their granddaughter Judy Nurse to Lt. Alan Scheaffer Sept. 7. Judy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Nurse (Betty Lutgens) of Ridgewood, N. J. Judy's paternal grandparents, Col. and Mrs. Howard Nurse of San Francisco, are unable to attend the wedding. Col. Nurse was in charge of construction of Hamilton Field, now Hamilton Air Force Base. Judy's brother, Kenneth Nurse of Honolulu, his wife and their two sons, have been visiting in the Bay Area for a month. Mr. and Mrs. Lutgens entertained them at dinner recently. Kenneth is well known in Marin, too, as he was a student at San Rafael High School and is one of its graduates. Judy's other brother, Howard Nurse, who will go into his junior year at Stanford University, will fly east for the wedding.

KATHLEEN GIRARD of San Rafael had as her weekend guest, Regina Groves of Hollywood. Miss Groves had a role in the just completed movie "Palm Springs Weekend." She also plays the part of Joannie in the TV serial, Our Man Higgins.

MR. AND MRS. ROGER LESCOHIER, with their two children, Jean Marie and Tom, have moved into their new home at 406 Magee Avenue, Mill Valley. The architecture is Oriental and the grounds will be landscaped into an Oriental garden. The Lescohiers have been living in Mill Valley for some time.

THE AUSTIN CADLES of San Rafael have enjoyed a month's visit from their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Otterson (Marianne Cadle), who brought their two children, Susan and Marilyn, with them. Jack was recently transferred by his firm from Reno, Nev., to New Orleans. The Cadles are planning a visit with the Ottersons during the Christmas season.

MR. AND MRS. S. W. STREW of Greenbrae celebrated their wedding anniversary in Carmel. They were married in the chapel there. With the Strews were Stanley Strew and Wanda Branstetter.

MRS. ELEANOR PENDERGRASS of San Rafael and son, Bill, flew to the Carolinas Tuesday. Bill will decide whether he will attend a college in South Carolina or in Mississippi. Mrs. Pendergrass will be joined by her daughter, Rhea, who is studying to be a nurse and was on the staff of a Montreal hospital this summer. Mrs. Pendergrass will also visit her brother in South Carolina. While she is away her home is occupied by Rev. Royal Scott, his wife and their three children. Reverend Scott is the new associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael. He is assistant to the pastor, Rev. Wesley Baker.

PRINCE VLADIMIR E. Eletski flew in from Honolulu yesterday to spend the weekend with his long time friend, Walter D. Kephart of San Anselmo. The prince is a member of an old and distinguished Russian family, which went into exile following the Bolshevik Revolution. Early next week the prince will go to southern California to join his wife and son at the family estate at Westminster, not far from Laguna Beach.

Honorary chairman of the Wives Club, Mrs. Marvin H. Good, and 35 members were luncheon guests of Captain Leroy E. Harris, carrier commander.

Jumper Goes Formal

Traditionally, the jumper is a sportswear item. But for the younger set for fall, it comes styled in numerous versions for dress-up occasions. A favorite fabric: velveteen. One designer does a formal jumper in gold velveteen, coat-dress style, falling to the ankles.

Redwood High School P-TA Planning Discussion Units

To promote understanding between parents and teachers of Redwood High School, informal coffee parties are being planned to start after the beginning of the school year.

The parties will be held in the various neighborhoods within Redwood's attendance area. Some are planned for morning and others for evening so that fathers may attend.

School problems of a general and specific nature will be discussed. The subject is usually determined by the desires of those attending and a speaker from the school is invited. In the past parents have requested speakers on various subjects such as the English program, clubs and activities, grades, teen-age problems and college admissions.

Mrs. Willard R. Ivarson of Kentfield, parent education chairman for the Redwood Parent-Teacher Assn., is coordinating the program. She has appointed area chairmen to assist her, who may be called by persons interested in hosting or attending one of the parties.

Area chairmen are Mrs. T. Scott Strathairn, Ross, who is also assistant education chairman for the P-TA; Mrs. John C. Siemens, Kentfield; Mrs. Chet A. Patterson, Greenbrae; Mrs. William R. Myers, Belvedere-Tiburon, and Mrs. Loren W. Tuttle, Corte Madera, who is chairman for Mariner Cove, Marin Estates and Mariner Highlands.

RECEPTION TO HONOR DEBUTANTE

A reception honoring their daughter, Ann, will be given by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Newton Longfellow of San Anselmo on Monday evening at the Officers Club, Hamilton Air Force Base.

Several hundred family friends and contemporaries of Ann have been invited, as well as the other girls who will be presented at the Marin Debutante Ball in December. Monday afternoon Ann's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Franchini, who are former Marinites, plan to arrive in their private plane from Madera for the reception.

Wrapped-Up Head

The wrapped-up head takes over in the fall and winter millinery. New York dress designers such as Bill Blass and Jacques Tiffeau showed it. In the case of Blass, the covers were babushkas in everything from chiffon for evening to genuine leopard triangular scarf for day. Tiffeau designed both fabric and fur hoods. The milliners also are in the act with tie-ons of both fur and fabric.

Two Hawaii Sino-Americans Leave Their Mark On Marin

Chinn Ho and Ed Lee, two Americans of Chinese ancestry, have left their mark on Marin.

Ho's Capital Investment Company of Hawaii purchased the 2000-acre McNear ranch from its first would-be developer eight years ago. From the start Ed Lee, a former Honolulu city planner, was Ho's personal representative in charge of planning the development which we now know as Marin Bay.

Their approach to the development of the property is a credit to their appreciation of Marin's natural beauty. The beautiful golf course and Peacock Gap clubhouse demonstrated their ability to carry the development beyond planning to construction. These things will endure as reminders of their accomplishments here.

Now that the Draper Companies have acquired Marin Bay, we can expect to see very little of Ho and Lee, at least for awhile.

It was characteristic that they made a gesture of generosity to be remembered by.

At the breakfast hosted by the Draper Companies to announce the transfer, Chinn Ho was on hand to wish the new developers well and to make his farewell present to the people of San Rafael.

His gesture was in the form of a $5,000 check to the city for use in beautification. He did not spell it out, but it is known that he was most interested in beautifying the Third Street-San Pedro road approach to Marin Bay. He had on more than one occasion encouraged city officials along these lines and indicated he would participate when the city undertook some beautification effort.

Since no beautification has yet actually been started, his parting act was a $5,000 gift to give impetus to a start.

In his farewell comments, Ho indicated he expects to be active in other residential developments in Northern California in the future, perhaps even some elsewhere in Marin.

We hope he comes back some day; and we hope he brings Ed Lee, too. Their efforts at Marin Bay were consistent with the goal of preserving all we can of Marin's natural scenic advantages.

Happily, Ho's successor, the Draper Companies, have pledged to carry on in the same way.

We welcome their advent in our county seat city and wish them success, especially in their announced intent to carry on the development "with standards of quality . . . that have brought fame and national recognition to the community of Marin."

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker for proposing a Sanford Research Institute study of industries suited to Marin County and how to lure them here, also to the Draper Companies for underwriting the first $15,000 of an estimated $30,000 cost.

BOUQUETS to California Highway Patrolmen who used money from funds of their Marin-Golden Gate Squad Club to buy testimony-taking tape recorders for which the state had budgeted no money.

A BOUQUET to Mill Valley city councilmen who sensibly decided against charging youngsters a $1 license fee to sell lemonade, cookies or Christmas cards.

A BRICKBAT to Marin motorists, apparently increasing in number, who encroach on pedestrian cross-walks while waiting for the light to change. Where would that leave a pedestrian forced to leave his proper walk to detour around some road-hog and hit by another vehicle whose brakes failed?

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Joint Chiefs Believe That Treaty's Disadvantages Have An Edge

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—The military disadvantages of the nuclear test ban treaty to the U.S. outnumber the advantages seven to four.

That's the disturbing comparison in a terse summation of a position paper of the Joint Chiefs of Staff prepared especially for the Senate committees considering the pact.

This still-unpublished analysis is the basis on which the four top military leaders reached their admittedly tepid approval of this agreement.

Already this study is the core of the struggle over Senate ratification.

IT IS ON the key issues raised by the Joint Chiefs that treaty opponents are insistently demanding specific and unequivocal safeguards and guarantees from President Kennedy.

These demands, rather than the pact itself, have become the real battleground.

Presumably, this highly significant comparison will eventually be made known to the American people. In the meanwhile, this column can authoritatively report the following publishable highlights:

ADVANTAGES FROM LIMITED NUCLEAR TEST BAN—(1) U.S. has a larger number of nuclear weapons. (2) U.S. has a wider variety of delivery systems. (3) U.S. leads in "low yield" (tactical) weapons technology. However, the U.S. has virtually no information on the extent of Russian underground testing of such armaments. (4) U.S. has more nuclear plants and a greater stockpile of nuclear material.

DISADVANTAGES—(1) The Soviet has a definite superiority in "high yield" (50 to 100 megaton) weapons. (2) Soviet knows more about the effects of "high yield" weapons. (3) Soviet is further advanced in "high yield" weapons technology. (4) Soviet is considerably ahead of U.S. in anti-ballistic missiles. (5) The treaty would enable the Soviet to attain parity with the U.S. in tactical nuclear weapons. (6) There are strong reasons to believe the Soviet knows more about radar blackout effects that are crucial to the development of anti-missile missiles. (7) The treaty bars the testing of nuclear weapons to determine their performance under operational conditions. This is a particularly critical handicap to the U.S.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

AWARD 44 YEARS LATE

One war hero had to wait more than 44 years to get a medal for bravery.

Daniel Pisani, now 70, was cited for "courage and devotion to duty under shellfire" during World War I. At the time, he was promised an award but due to a series of oversights he never received it until February 1963.

Pisani was a cook in the 79th Division. During a severe period of fighting in France, when other members of the company took cover he continued his work of preparing and serving food despite intense shellfire.

Many a person who richly deserves an award from his fellow men goes through an entire lifetime without receiving it. But recognition for achievement to such an individual is usually quite incidental to the personal satisfaction of being of service to others in need.

"I will most gladly spend and be spent myself for your souls."

(2 Corinthians 12:15)

It is a deep consolation, O my God, to realize that You will one day grant me a divine reward for devotion to duty here below.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Helping Marin Boy Scouts

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In behalf of the Boy Scouts, Cubs and Explorers of Marin, and over 1000 adult Scouters, I would like to express thanks and gratitude to the Independent-Journal for all of the help extended over many, many years.

There have been innumerable articles assisting the Marin Council in sustaining membership drives, in the solicitation of funds for permanent improvements, in making known Scout Jamborees, Eagle Scout and Silver Beaver awards, and annual meetings. It would be almost impossible to list all of the scout activities concerning which information and publicity have appeared in the columns of the Independent-Journal.

In addition, contributions have been generously made. I can recall a particularly helpful one last year when we were in the midst of obtaining subscriptions for the improvement of Tamarancho and Marin Sierra, the two camping sites belonging to the Scouts of Marin.

Specifically, I name Roy Brown, Wishard Brown, Jack Craemer, Chip Day and Bryce Anderson as those who have willingly extended their hands whenever called upon by the scouts of Marin. These men and the Independent-Journal have made a significant contribution to the boys of our county. I apologize if I have omitted any other names, which should be here included.

I hope they will continue to work with us. For what they have already done, all of us in scouting salute them.

Scaring Voters Toward Right

Editor, Independent-Journal:

After reading about the regional meeting of the Young Democrats held in Berkeley it becomes reaily apparent why people like these are so quick to pin the "rightist" label on so many Americans.

Obviously by their left-wing standards, anyone who opposes recognition and assistance to Castro, supports the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities, and is reluctant to turn over the keys to the State Department to the United Nations is some sort of "right-wing extremist."

Fortunately for our nation, these Young Democrats are out of step with leaders of their own party as well as with the majority of Democrats and Republicans who have repeatedly rejected this wild-eyed Liberalism.

Judging from the machinations of this group, self-respecting people of this country may well have to turn to the "right" to avoid identification with the Liberal "left." In fact, hasn't this really been the growing trend in both major parties, in Congress, and on the Main Streets, U.S.A.?

Letters Can Wake 'Em

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I am sending you an article (on "Imported Formosan Mushrooms Threaten U.S. Growers"—EDITOR) with the thought that you may not have seen it. What concerns me is not the few mushroom growers, but the principle of the thing.

A recent magazine article deals with "pork barrel" projects and where our money is wasted. The problem isn't new and it isn't blameable on any one party or person.

I suggest that you urge your readers to write our representatives in regard to wasteful money projects and anything else of importance.

If "one picture is worth a thousand words" then one letter to your representative is equally valuable.

Teller Termed Unreliable

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A recent column said that Dr. Edward Teller was being paid $1,000 a day by defense contractors, so that he could advance their interests by advocating further nuclear testing.

The test-ban treaty has already received the support of many competent and impartial scientists. Under these circumstances, Dr. Teller's anti-treaty testimony has no scientific validity at all, and serves only to point up his lack of personal integrity and opposition to any constructive step toward peace.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

A tourist came back from Africa with a trunkful of shrunken heads he hoped to sell, but experienced some difficulty in locating a purchaser. Somebody suggested he try a big sporting goods store. He called up, and after a few moments, was connected with a man with a very deep voice. "I want to talk to somebody about selling a collection of shrunken heads," explained the tourist. "You're speaking to the right party," the deep voice assured him. "I'm the head buyer."

John Straley at last is convinced that all this talk he's been hearing about women taking over control in this land of ours is the real McCoy. He overheard two little girls quarreling one day last week. Shrilled one of them, "My mother can lick your mother!"

One Car Per Second On Bridge Faster'n Giants Are Going

WELL, I guess it's goodbye for the Giants. Most of the fans seem to have given up.

Up to a couple weeks ago, fans were cursing the team and the manager and getting all steamed up about each loss. Now they don't seem to care.

When a couple of fellows meet at a street corner or for a cup of coffee, the conversation turns instead to how many shaves you can get out of the new stainless steel blades that have just come out.

BY THE WAY, our sports columnist, John J. Connolly, is not going to write for some other paper. That rumor you heard about Connolly changing jobs is a case of mistaken identity. They were referring to another Connolly.

By the time this gets into print, the whole thing might be clarified.

GEORGE HASMAN of San Rafael, retired deputy sheriff, has turned writer. He's come out with a manuscript of a book entitled "Why Only One Woman." Judging from the caustic digs he takes at women in general, you can just about guess that he is a bachelor.

Some samples of Hasman's writing: "A puff above the belt, a puff below, and you have a woman." She is "careful of face, careless of kitchen."

Some 140 pages of this stuff is enough to make any woman reader throw the book into the fireplace.

NEXT TIME the kids ask to go to the motor movies, Ed Klementovich of Mill Valley will probably go.

Last weekend, he turned the kids down because he wanted to relax. While he relaxed at home, they were calling out his name at Bank Night for a $500 prize. But you gotta be there to collect.

The sheriff's championship pistol team can no longer sit back and rest on their laurels just because they won three state titles in a row. They are being threatened from an unexpected quarter.

THE SECOND TEAM, headed by Wade R. Powell, is doing so well that they're going to give the first team a run for their money.

More than 84,000 cars passed over the Golden Gate Bridge last Sunday. Come to think of it, that's a lot of traffic.

That averages out to about one car each second, 24 hours a day including the slack hours after midnight.

JAMES MARLOW

Washington Tense As Clouds Mass Dark On Horizon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington is in a slow swirl, psychologically and politically.

It waits for the massive civil rights demonstration next Wednesday, hoping that whole memorable day will go off peacefully.

Negotiations between railroads and unions are stalemated. Unless some way is found to stop it, there will be a railroad strike Thursday.

The arrival and departure of 100,000 or more demonstrators in one day, even if everything is peaceful, will be an unforgettable burden.

BUT TO HAVE the demonstration followed the next day by a rail strike would be piling climax on climax.

While the city waits, Congress, bumbling along at the slowest pace in years, continues to drag its feet and many be here until the end of the year.

The center of this quiet stage is occupied now by Senate hearings on the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

THAT TREATY, once approved, could be a fiendish embarrassment to the Kennedy administration if the Russians then try tricks to American disadvantage.

If nothing goes wrong, it will be an asset to President Kennedy in seeking re-election. If it goes wrong, it will be an issue in the 1964 campaign.

The administration, conscious of both possibilities, acknowledges risk but insists the treaty's advantages outweigh the disadvantages.

The two most likely Republican presidential candidates as of now—New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater—are conscious of the for and against possibilities, too.

BOTH HAVE provided themselves an "I told you so" if the treaty proves a dud.

The treaty has wide popular support, it seems sure to pass the Senate by a wide margin, and neither Rockefeller nor Goldwater has come out against it.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Investigation of reported poor pressure and mud in water supplied by the Point Reyes Water Co. was promised by the State Public Utility Commission, after the county health department joined in complaints.

Venetia Meadows property owners turned out in force to protest a county Planning Commission application to keep a donkey. Planners denied after hearing of the menaces in the way of flies, smell, noise and danger to children and property.

The Country Parson

"If we didn't have rich men, I suppose we wouldn't have beggars either."

20 YEARS AGO

The 11,000-acre Murphy ranch, last of the large north bay coastal holdings and located on the Point Reyes Peninsula, was offered for sale along with announcement that owner Leland Murphy was retiring to his San Anselmo home.

Cigarette Tag Week conducted by Wilkins Post, American Legion, aided by Cub Pack 30 of St. Paul's Church in San Rafael, netted $137.40 and meant 2,748 packs for men at the front.

A county planning commission letter to Marin supervisors strongly objected to a plan that it move into the old Coleman School from the Cheda Building, along with the justice court, agricultural commissioner and sealer of weights and measures. But the board stood firm.

Marin spuervisors adopted a resolution concerning acquisition of Northwestern Pacific right-of-way, after Chairman T. Fred Bagshaw declared there was an obligation to cooperate with the cities, their attitude being that they would "take action within legal rights for acquisition for whatever public use is requested."

Cosa Nostra's Eight Leaders Rule Crime Syndicate

By H. D. QUIGG
U.P. International

Middle-aged and jowly. Pudgy-faced, with eyes that shift. Hard minds, fixed on the business that's always at hand. These men rule.

Their kingdoms are eight major cities, plus the near and far suburbs that ring them. Their overall cartel of crime is a shadowy substance called "cosa nostra." No hard alliance here—except for recurring family ties. Just an understanding, the snarling palship of big cats that prey in a common jungle.

These men are the "commission" that presides over organized crime in the United States, according to the Justice Department. The information has been coming for some time from a former cosa nostra member, Joe Valachi, a frightened man in an Army fort.

Depending on which paper you read, Valachi is "singing Joe," "the talking terrorist," "the singsong hoodlum," or "the blabbermouth of cosa nostra." But his song is not so funny.

A quarter-century ago, another singer named Abe Reles began a roundelay about a kill-for-hire mob in Brooklyn called Murder, Inc. In 1941, in midsong, Reles went out the window of a Coney Island hotel to his death, while guarded by police. And spawned an underworld saying: "This was one canary who could sing but couldn't fly."

Hence the placement of Valachi in heavily guarded Fort Monmouth, N.J. Reles sang of a murdering gang with romantic names: Happy Maione, Frank The Dasher Abbandano, etc.

Valachi's overlords have no such nonsense about them. Today's crop, underworld businessmen of distinction, born mostly in Sicily and Italy, are described as sincere, affable; one looks like a retired gentleman, another like "a kindly old grandfather."

Cosa nostra is an Italian idiom meaning "our business, our affair." Their business is vice, which the dictionary says means "evil conduct." Their overall take is estimated at 40 billion dollars a year.

Are we dreaming this? Is it all made up? Some people say we are, and yes it is. Most police don't think so. Certainly 40 billion dollars a year in the hands of practitioners of evil isn't part of "the American dream."

As named by Valachi, the big city bosses are:

Vito Genovese, 66, New York (the head man) now in Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Sam Giancana, 55, Chicago.

Joseph Zerilli, 65, Detroit.

Sebastian Larocca, 61, Pittsburgh.

Angelo Bruno, 53, Philadelphia.

Stefano Magaddino, 71, Buffalo.

Raymond Patriarca, 55, New England.

John T. Scalish, 51, Cleveland.

Who are these kings of unglory?

Vito Genovese, "the benevolent squire," had a $200,000 art collection in his home. He is reputed to be worth 30 million dollars. He once presided over a multi-million-dollar narcotics ring.

The 66-year-old native of Italy is named as the overall boss. A 1960 narcotics conviction got him a 15-year federal prison sentence, and for a long time Valachi, the present songbird of the barracks, was his cellmate.

Genovese rose to the top in 1957, during an "underworld convention" at Apalachin, N.Y.

He had learned his lessons well in errand-running years serving the underworlds of America and Italy. According to Valachi, Genovese elevated himself by three nods of the head in 1957. First he nodded to his chauffeur who went out and took a potshot at kingpin Frank Costello but muffed it.

Another nod, and down went Frank Scalise while munching a peach outside a Bronx fruit store.

Nod three was for Albert Anastasia, who died with his barber's bib on.

By this time, Genovese was living quietly as "squire of the highlands" in the Jersey shore community of Atlantic Highlands. His daughter was installed next door with six grandchildren. Neighbors spoke of his grandfatherly attitude. The two murders and the attempted murder all are officially unsolved.

The squire had been a scared young hood in 1934 when he fled to Italy to escape prosecution in the murder of one Ferdinand Boccia. He had become an American citizen in 1913. When the American army arrived in Italy in World War II, there was Vito.

He got himself a job as interpreter with the incoming American army and began stealing American supplies and doing black market business with some of his Fascist pals.

Army intelligence got wise. Then they found he was wanted for murder in New York. Back came Vito, in 1945. However, two key witnesses against him were quickly murdered. Genovese was acquitted. He apparently is still calling signals, from prison.

Back in 1928, the Chicago crime commission made a note to watch a tough, 20-year-old, black-haired west sider named Salvatore (Momo) Giancana. Giancana was a comer. Had all it takes to make it big with the mobs.

They were right. Since 1956, Sam has been the acknowledged head of the Chicago mob.

In 1928, he was expert at most forms of crime but used rough stuff only when he had to. Showed signs of brains.

By 1951, Sam was leader of the "young bloods" faction objecting to the conservatism. In 1953, it's rumored, the national syndicate let Giancana take over completely in Chicago.

Giancana was good at investing in semi-legitimate enterprises such as construction and auto agency financing.

A widower since 1954, he lives maybe one week a month in a comfortable home in Oak Park, Ill. Rest of the time he darts around the country. Lately, been gadding about Europe. He is a friend of singer Phyllis McGuire. He has three daughters.

Joseph Zerilli, 65, the man listed by the Justice Department in Detroit, points out that he has been in the bakery business for 36 years and, besides that, he never heard of Valachi. Zerilli was "Mr. Joe" in the prohibition era, regarded as a leading beer baron. He was convicted in 1919 of carrying a concealed weapon. Fine $50. That's all.

He was born in Sicily, came here in 1914 and was naturalized. He now lives in Grosse Pointe Park and his financial interests are a produce company as well as the Detroit Italian Baking Co.

Nestled on several acres of woodland in a suburb 10 miles north of Pittsburgh is a rambling stone "show place" home. There lives a very wealthy man who never visits nightclubs but every Saturday without fail visits a steam bath.

It is no secret that he is very wealthy. But John Sebastian (Big John) LaRocca, now 61, is risen from poverty. Born in Siciliy, he came here and worked in a coal mine at the age of 14. Then he operated a gasoline station. Then he moved into bootlegging and eventually the numbers racket.

His acquaintances say he would like now to cut all ties with the rackets, but he is a board member of the syndicate and has been for many years. He operates a legitimate business, a concrete block supply firm.

LaRocca served three years in the 1920s on conviction of assault with intent to kill, and has later beaten deportation and perjury cases brought against him.

Angelo Bruno heads Penn-Jersey Vending, Inc., in Philadelphia. He lives modestly in a two-story row house and is considered a good, quiet neighbor. Doesn't go for night life or sports events. Police say he has another home in another section where his wife Sue and two children live. He is 53. Born in Italy.

This retiring figure is tabbed by police commissioner Howard R. Leary as "a shrewd leader who has very great influence beyond the confines of Pennsylvania."

"The head man of the rackets in Philadelphia," said the head of the special investigation squad, "but he doesn't go near the actual operation."

"Look at him," said a Buffalo, N.Y., detective, staring at the picture of Stefano Magaddino. "Looks like a kindly old grandfather; looks like he wouldn't hurt a flea."

Buffalo police have no record of arrests against Magaddino, an affable, congenial old man who at 71 is called "The Don" or "Don Stefano" or "Il Bosso Stefano" and is co-president with his son Peter of Magaddino Memorial Chapel, Inc., in Niagara Falls, the family undertaking business.

A Buffalo police chart titled "Mafia (syndicate) relationship" has a series of circles each representing a known underworld denizen. Arrows from the small circles point to other circles and, in the end, to a center circle marked "Stefano Magaddino."

John T. Scalish, 51, is the baby of the bunch. He spends a lot of time fishing and boating in Lake Erie. Cleveland-born, he lives there in a big old frame house with his wife Tillie and three children, and he's building a $100,000 home in another section.

Of the Justice Department's naming him as one of the crime overlords, he told the Cleveland Press: "I don't know why they're picking on me now. I've kept my nose clean for 30 years. The only way I can stop them is get a lawyer and sue."

Scalish is a handsome type, with brown eyes and wavy black hair flecked with gray. He has stated his income as a partner in the Buckeye Cigaret Service is $30,000 a year.

Scalish was one of the 20 delegates to the Apalachin crime convention convicted of a conspiracy of silence to obstruct justice, and was sentenced, and then the court of appeals upset the convictions.

Raymond L. S. Patriarca, 55, is a small, dapper man who was described in 1957 by the Massachusetts Crime Commission as the "most powerful influence" in an interstate gambling network doing a 2-billion-dollar annual business in Massachusetts.

A former Massachusetts assistant attorney general told a Kefauver crime hearing in 1950 that Patriarca, to whom Providence, R.I., is home, was attempting to muscle in on the race information service that supplied an estimated 3,000 bookies in Rhode Island.

Virgil Peterson, who directed the Chicago Crime Commission, told the committee that Patriarca was the "king of the rackets" in Rhode Island and also alleged Patriarca was tied up with members of Costello's outfit in New York.

Patriarca's criminal record began in 1926 when he was fined $20 for failing to stop at a policeman's signal.

In Boston, in 1938, he was pardoned 84 days from the time he was sentenced to serve three to five years for armed robbery. This pardon, and others, touched off a scandal which led to the impeachment of Daniel H. Coakley, a veteran member of the executive council in Massachusetts.

Drilling For Lives Underground

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Three men who make their livelihood by tapping the earth remained trapped deep in her bosom this week, victims of a cave-in. Other miners sought to extract the trio before the earth could take their lives.

At week's end, as the grim incarceration entered its 12th day, hope had dimmed for Louis Bova, 42. Though a six-inch-wide probe was believed to have reached his chamber, more than 300 feet below the surface of the earth, nothing had been heard from him since late Tuesday.

But some 18 feet from Bova, in another cold and dark prison created by the cave-in, irrepressible and courageous life was much in evidence, from David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 28.

A microphone dropped through a "contact" hole linked them to loudspeakers at the surface of the mine, the Oneida Collery No. 2 near Sheppton, in eastern Pennsylvania. The scores—and sometimes hundreds—of workers and curiosity-seekers could clearly hear Fellin and Throne.

They heard the plucky pair sing, banter with those on the surface, direct a drilling operation designed to rescue them, and continue undaunted when a probe missed their cubicle. Late yesterday the words came from Fellin that everyone had been waiting to hear:

It's through . . . the hole is drilled out."

A 12-inch drill probe, the third such try, had broken through the roof of their chamber. Up on the surface, Fellin's wife, Anna, who had kept a quiet vigil for 11 days, quietly wept. "Thank you, Lord," she whispered.

It now remained to ream out the 12-inch tunnel to a diameter of 17½ inches, shore up the underground cavity, and then, hopefully, raise the men to the surface in a specially constructed metal cylinder.

If all went well rescuers anticipated that Fellin and Throne might see the outer world by the start of the new week. Risk still was great, they emphasized, but hope soared for the two men.

The fate of Bova was yet to be learned.

In Vietnam, a dispute described as religious by the country's Buddhist majority and political by the Roman Catholic ruling family of President Ngo Dinh Diem came to a violent and bloody head this week, bringing an apparent shift of power.

Martial law was declared after policemen with clubs and tear gas raided Buddhist pagodas, beating priests and arresting hundreds of them. Curfews were imposed and armed troops roamed the streets with orders to shoot those defying them.

Conflicting reports followed the clash; informants in Saigon said power had shifted in the authoritarian government family from Ngo Dinh Diem to his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu; others reported the army had ascended to control of the situation.

In any case Washington saw the turbulence as the intermediate stages of a struggle which might well topple the Vietnamese government, and imperil the long fight to subdue the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas. Thirteen thousand American troops have been committed to keep Viet Nam free from communism.

However, there was little the United States could do immediately in the fluid situation. Henry Cabot Lodge, new U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam, was rushed to Saigon to take over his post, and policy experts in the state department worked on policy alternatives.

Busy Week For Congress

The House handed President John F. Kennedy one of his worst legislative setbacks yesterday by approving a Republican-sponsored cut of 585 million dollars in his foreign aid program.

The vote was 222 to 188.

Coming after committee slashes of about 400 million dollars in the authorization bill, the House action left the final total for the program at 3.5 billion dollars.

Sixty-six Democrats joined with 156 Republicans in a drive led by GOP foreign aid foes.

Included in the cuts were 150 million dollars trimmed from the alliance for progress, and 225 million dollars in military assistance.

Even if the administration is successful in getting the money restored in the Senate, the bill faces a fight over the actual aid appropriations bill.

Chances of a floor fight dimmed hopes for quick approval of legislation designed to head off a nationwide rail strike. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said he would oppose the measure approved by the Senate Commerce Committee and try to substitute Kennedy's proposal to let the Interstate Commerce Commission act as referee in the controversy over work rules changes.

Around The World Around The Clock

Taxes—The president made another, strong plea to Congress this week to enact this year, not next, his bill for a 10.7 billion dollar tax cut. Kennedy warned that the country's economic recovery might wane without this priming measure, and pledged economy of governmental operations to placate the deficit-haters.

Treaty—The limited nuclear test ban treaty, running a perilous course through Senate committee meetings, ran afoul of Dr. Edward Teller, known as the "father" of the H-bomb, and Lewis Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Strauss recommended revisions of the document, and Teller said it had dangerous loopholes. The president strongly denied Teller's assertions.

Khrushchev—The Soviet premier paid a cordial visit to President Tito of Yugoslavia, and appeared to be influencing the normally independent course of that nation toward a Moscow tack. The apparent rapprochement was another snub to Red China, which has branded Tito as a key ideological traitor in the Communist world.

ENFORCEMENT PROBLEM

New Teacher Rules Bring New Worry

By ROBERT FAIRBANKS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California State Board of Education attracted a fair amount of national publicity last May when it adopted a new set of regulations aimed at enforcing higher academic standards on prospective teachers.

Specifically, the board drew a bead on "education majors," the young men and women who take "how to teach" courses in college rather than majoring in the academic subject they will teach. These students, the board said, were no longer eligible to teach in the nation's largest public school system.

When the regulations become effective next January, the state will grant a teaching credential (license to teach) only to students who have completed a four-year course crammed with liberal arts training and with a major or minor in an academic subject, such as mathematics, English, science or history.

Education courses are still required, but board members cut their number and confined them to a fifth year of study.

Reform - minded citizens hailed the board's action. Board members themselves, under President Thomas Braden, a newspaper publisher, relaxed with the feeling of having completed a job well done. But lately, a slight sense of unease has crept upon several members of the board.

How, they wonder, can they assure themselves that California colleges, which train about two-thirds of the 19,000 new teachers hired annually, will abide by the new regulations?

According to their reasoning, a college with an administration friendly to professors of education could simply renumber education courses under a new heading that would make them appear to be in the realm of "academic" or "liberal arts."

A spokesman for the state college system, the largest bloc of colleges in the state denied that the board had anything to fear. He said that if, for instance, the professors of education attempted to put a "how to teach arithmetic" course under the general heading of "mathematics," the mathematic professors would rise in arms to prevent it.

While the uneasy board members hope that the spokesman is correct, they nevertheless note that professors of education form an important group within the 17 - school college system, if only because the schools were founded originally as teacher training institutions. Furthermore, a majority of the 17 state college presidents hold graduate degrees in the field of education and might therefore be sympathetic to it.

But board members base their apprehensions less on present circumstances than on performance in the past. During the three-year battle that preceded adoption of the new regulations, professors of education and professional education groups fought them every inch of the way.

"There is no reason to believe the situation is changed said one board member.

Now, three months after adoption of the new regulations, Prof. James W. Neil, chairman of the education division at Sacramento State College, called the regulations "a mistake" and said that the schools "will pay for it."

Neil declared himself "an educationist and proud of it." He said that he and his fellows believed that the mistake came not with the new liberal arts and academic requirements but with the decrease in professional education requirements.

Neil was most unhappy about the new regulations for elementary teachers, in which the board worked its most radical innovations.

Under the old rules, a prospective elementary teacher needed only a four-year college degree with 24 units of professional education. Under the new system, he or she will need four years filled with liberal arts and academic subjects plus a fifth year with 20 units of professional education.

The cut from 24 to 20 units of professional education may not seem radical, and it is not. However, most of the state colleges were requiring their prospective elementary teachers to take anywhere up to 45 units of professional education during their first four years. But now, because of the new requirements, there is no room for this.

Thus, the professional educators now have only the fifth year in which to work. And, according to Neil, they do not believe it is enough.

Neil also criticized the board for another provision of the new regulations that bar all but persons who have majored in academic subjects from higher positions in the public school system.

"We want fair employment and fair housing," he said, "but these new credentials exclude business administration, home economics, physical education, professional education and agriculture.

"This is discriminatory; there is no evidence that persons who major in academic subjects are better educated."

However, the 16 - member accreditation committee, composed of representatives from the schools and the state department of education, works slowly. At the outset, it will be up to the colleges to oversee themselves.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

Sometimes Partner Figures Your Cards, So Keep Your Mouth Shut

In certain competitive situations your partner must bid your cards for you, and you must keep quiet.

If you hear your partner's bid and then look at your hand and see high cards, don't think those high cards are worth a further bid. Your partner has already taken them into account.

When the opponents stopped at two spades, South thought it highly likely that his side could make a part score of some kind.

He knew that his partner had had a good hand; otherwise the opponents would have bid more.

SOUTH RIGHT

South was quite right. The opponents could make two spades, and South could make three hearts.

Unfortunately, South had a partner to contend with. When South bid three hearts, North raised to four hearts.

OPENS CLUB

West opened the 10 of clubs, and South had to win in dummy and draw two rounds of trumps to prevent East from getting diamond ruffs. South next led a spade toward dummy's king.

West took the ace of spades and led his other club to dummy's ace. Declarer discarded a club on the king of spades and ruffed a club.

OVER-RUFFS

West over-ruffed and returned a spade. South could ruff in either hand, but he could get to his hand only once to lead diamonds.

West was bound to make two diamond tricks in addition to his trump and the ace of spades.

Remember this situation if you and your partner habitually reopen the bidding when the opponents run out of steam at a low level.

It's quite enough to play the hand at a part score or push the opponents one trick higher. You can't both get into the act.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 24, the 236th day of 1963 with 129 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first phase. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 79 A. D., Mount Vesuvius erupted and buried the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum under molten lava.

In 1814, the British captured Washington, D. C., and burned the capitol and the White House.

In 1909, construction began on the Panama Canal.

A thought for the day — German novelist Franz Kafka said: "There are two cardinal sins from which all others spring: Impatience and laziness."

East of the wall...

The spirit of competition is gone. Government monopoly and fear have taken its place.

But, West of the wall, the spirit of competition reigns strong—creating the hustle and bustle of people scurrying from store to store buying the things they want and need. West of the wall, advertising spurs the competitive spirit and motivates the desires of free men for better things.

Giant Bats Awaken; 'We're Still In It', Says Dark

Battered but finally batting with some authority, the San Francisco Giants refuse to be counted out of this National League pennant.

Twenty - six hits in their last two games, including 16 last night in an 11-3 whipping of Cincinnati, gave an indication the Giants are awake at the bat.

Tom Haller and Chuck Hiller each homered while Willie Mays and Felipe Alou contributed triples in the assault against starter Jim Maloney, the loser, and his reliever, Jim Coates.

The two victories parlayed with losses by the Los Angeles Dodgers left the Giants 6½ games behind the league leaders and one in back of the second - place St. Louis Cardinals.

"We're still in it," Manager Alvin Dark declared as he gambled with Southpaw Billy O'Dell and his mending ankle against the Reds and John Tsitouris today.

O'Dell has been one of several Giants on the injury list as the San Franciscans still operate without regular third baseman Jim Davenport and Jim Hart, the rookie who also plays at third.

"I wouldn't say we're better off physically than we have been, but the fellows certainly were hitting," Dark observed.

Hiller's hitting the past two games has been the best of the season for him with five hits in eight official trips, including his fifth homer of the campaign.

He has a sore muscle near his ribs, but joked, "maybe I should have hurt it sooner. Actually, I'm waiting for the ball better and feeling better. That broken finger early in the season really set me back."

Reliever Bob Bolin deserved a big share of the winning credit as he worked six innings without a run charged to him, struck out a half dozen Reds and didn't give up a walk.

He nearly became the goat in the fourth after taking over for Jack Sanford with the bases full. Following Maloney's sacrifice fly to drive in one run, Pete Rose hit a grounder to Bolin. The pitcher had an easy putout at first an impossible try at second but tried for the latter with no success.

"I just made up my mind what I was going to do before I made the pitch," Bolin admitted. "That's one I'll be thinking about for a long time."

The Reds scored another run in that inning to knot the count at 3-3 but Haller's 10th homer of the campaign, with Orlando Cepeda aboard in the fourth inning, ended the deadlock.

The Giants scored twice more in that inning as Hiller singled in one run and Willie McCovey another. Hiller homered to open the sixth and Mays tripled home a run the same inning following McCovey's single, the third hit for the left fielder.

Maloney had won 18 games but absorbed his sixth defeat without showing much. Manager Fred Hutchinson summed it up, saying "It was just one of those nights. He never could get real loose."

Spahn Snips Dodger Lead

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Graybeard Warren Spahn, suddenly turning into a Bluebeard against Los Angeles, has taken another step toward his 13th 20-game victory season while shaving the Dodgers' National League lead to 5½ games.

Given home run support by Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron, the 42-year-old Milwaukee left-hander posted victory No. 16 last night, scattering nine hits in a 6-1 triumph over the Dodgers.

Time was when Spahn got a paid vacation when the Braves met the Dodgers. He went into the season with an 18-34 record against his worst tormentors, but has developed into a Dodger killer with a 4-0 record against the front-runners this year.

Second-place St. Louis gained a game with a 4-1 decision over Houston behind Bob Gibson's five-hitter.

Third-place San Francisco closed to within 6½ as Chuck Hiller and Tom Haller connected for homers and Willie Mays lashed a double and triple in an 11-3 victory over Cincinnati and 18-game winner Jim Maloney.

Fourth-place Philadelphia, only 7½ back, defeated Pittsburgh 4-2 and the Chicago Cubs snapped a three-game losing streak by edging the New York Mets 6-5.

The American League leading New York Yankees belted the Chicago White Sox 7-2, Baltimore crushed Minnesota in a twi-night doubleheader 14-4 and 6-2, Detroit walloped Kansas City in a pair 17-2 and 6-2, the Los Angeles Angels thumped Washington 17-0 and Boston defeated Cleveland 3-2 in 13 innings.

FATHER, SON

For a while at Los Angeles, it looked like father and son night, with Spahn making his 601st major league start against Dick Calmus, a 19-year-old Dodger rookie starting for the first time. Calmus lasted less than an inning as Mathews chased him with home run No. 19. Aaron connected in the ninth for his 33rd homer. Spahn, now 16-5, was touched for the Dodgers' only run in the first on a single by Maury Wills, an infield out and Tommy Davis' single.

The Cardinals scored their runs in the first inning against Dick Farrell, 10-10, helped by Colt catcher John Bateman's wild throw on a double steal by Curt Flood and Bill White. Flood scored from second on the play, George Altman doubled in two more runs and Julian Javier singled in Altman. Gibson, 14-7, struck out 12 but lost his shutout in the eighth.

Wes Covington's two-run homer in the third inning off Don Schwall, 6-9, put the Phillies ahead to stay before they pushed across the deciding run in the fifth on a walk, a hit batter and an error by Bob Bailey. Strong relief pitching by Jack Baldschun preserved the victory for Dennis Bennett, 7-2.

Billy Williams drove in five runs with his 20th and 21st homers and a sacrifice fly as the Cubs beat the Mets. Ron Hunt and Duke Carmel homered for New York. Paul Toth, 5-8, picked up the victory. Larry Bearnarth, 2-6, was the loser.

Jets Battle The Raiders In Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, bolstered by several newcomers, tangle with a rapidly improving New York Jet aggregation tomorrow at Frank Youell Field at 1:30 p.m.

Jim McMillin, obtained for a medium draft choice from the Denver Broncos, is expected to see plenty of action at a defensive halfback spot.

McMillin played at Colorado State and was a starter for Denver since 1960.

Another member of the probable starting defensive squad will be Clancy Osborne, signed as a free agent after being waived out of the National Football League.

The Raiders and the Jets both are working under new coaches. Al Davis heads the Oakland squad and Weeb Ewbank is mentor of the Jets.

Oakland has a 2-1 exhibition record while the Jets have yet to emerge victorious in two starts. Nevertheless, Davis fears the offensive and defensive ability of the visitors, who have improved with each game.

Both clubs use the double-quarterback system with Oakland depending on Tommy Flores and Cotton Davidson while Ewbank shifts from Lee Grosscup to Johnny Green.

The game is not expected to attract a large crowd as it was scheduled in Oakland on short notice after segregation problems developed in Mobile, Ala., original site of the contest.

Nash Is National Champion

Gordon Nash of Richmond is the new champion of International 110 Class yacht racing. He compiled 162½ points over the five-day meet on San Francisco Bay to top second finisher Dick Allen, San Diego, by four points.

San Diego's Terry Ryan finished third with 145¼ points.

While Gordon is deserving of his wide acclaim, much of the credit is due to his crew, none other than his wife, Jocelyn. Gordon's overall victory was based on finishes of 1-5-1-3-3—and that is consistent for five races that had 34 starters.

Off to a poor start, San Francisco's other top-flight 110er, Grant Willson, came on strong in the latter races to nail down the fourth spot in the overall standings.

Frost, who was seeking his fifth straight international championship, ran into hard luck and finished 23rd in the field of 34. Here are the final overall standings:

CONTROVERSIAL SEASON

Midweek Opening Set For California Duck Hunting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California scatter gunners can shoot an extra duck this season, but it's going to cost them some hunting days.

The California Fish and Game Commission yesterday had a choice of lengthening the duck season or giving hunters a larger limit than last year. And the bigger limit won out, together with a controversial midweek opening.

Selected was a 75-day straight season, to open Wednesday, Oct. 23, and close Sunday, Jan. 5, with a daily bag and possession limit of six. The same will apply for geese.

Last year, California had a 68-day split season with a duck bag and possession limit of five. The goose limit was six, the same as this year.

The 1963 regulations applied everywhere but the Colorado River area and northeastern California. So they would correspond with Arizona and Oregon, each of these regions got a longer, 90-day straight season starting Tuesday, Oct. 8, and closing Jan. 5. But the duck limits were smaller.

For the Colorado River area, the duck bag and possession limit was five. A four and eight limit was set for northeastern California, which includes all of Modoc and Lassen counties, and portions of Siskiyou, Plumas, Shasta and Tehama.

The commission's vote was 2-1, but not until after one commissioner and the Department of Fish and Game objected to a weekday duck and goose season opening.

Commissioner William Elser of San Diego unsuccessfully pushed for a 72-day straight shoot starting Saturday, Oct. 26, and ending Jan. 5. He said most sportsmen could not hunt during the middle of the week.

The Department of Fish and Game asked for an 86-day season with limits of five and five, starting Saturday, Oct. 12, and ending Jan. 5. When this failed, director Walter Shannon plugged for Elser's proposal.

The final regulations were supported by Commissioners Dante Nomellini of Stockton and Thomas Richards of Sacramento. Commission President Jamie L. Smith of Los Angeles was absent and Henry Clineschmidt of Redding was not eligible to vote because he was acting president.

The commission also set regulations for these birds:

Brant—A 75-day straight season, Nov. 23 to Jan. 31, with bag and possession limit of three.

Snipe—A 45-day straight season, Nov. 23 to Jan. 5, with limits of eight.

Coots and Gallinules — Same season as ducks and geese with bag and possession limit of 25.

Shooting will start at 1 p.m., except along the Colorado River, where it will be noon.

49ERS, BROWNS AT S.F. TOMORROW

Cleveland's Browns and the San Francisco 49ers battle with a common goal tomorrow with each team seeking to capture its first 1963 National Football League pre-season victory after two setbacks.

The Browns lost to Detroit 24-10 and Baltimore 21-7 while San Francisco fell before Minnesota 43-28 and St. Louis 24-22. Both Red Hickey of the 49ers and new coach Blanton Collier of the Browns have been experimenting and more can be expected tomorrow at Kezar.

Collier has installed a new multiple offense system with fullback Jimmy Brown again a key man in the attack. Brown has led the NFL rushers the past five years and on four occasions gained more than 1,000 yards during the regular season. Last year, he just missed that goal when Cleveland beat the 49ers on a muddy field 13-10 concluding the season.

This will be the Browns' first outing against the 49ers without Paul Brown at the helm. He was fired as coach following the 1962 season after heading the club since its formation. The 49ers and Browns entered the old All-America Conference together in 1946 and went into the NFL in 1950.

Hickey expects to open with a backfield of veterans with John Brodie at quarterback, J. D. Smith at fullback, Lloyd Winston at left halfback and Bernie Casey at flanker.

The kickoff is 1:30 p.m.

Webb Is Beaten In North Cal Golf Playoff

Rick Webb, Kentfield golfer, bowed to Butch Wehrman of Merced 3 and 2 in the finals of the fifth flight as the Northern California Junior Golf Assn. Junior Amateur Championship came to a close yesterday.

Webb was the last of the Marin County entrants, numbering 12, which started in the golf tourney at Olympic Club's Lakeside course in San Francisco. Webb was the only Marin junior linkster to make it to the final round.

Johnny Miller of San Francisco defeated Len Studinger 6 and 4 in the championship flight to win the Norcal title.

Frustrated Bay Area Sports Fans Have No Place To Turn

RANDOL

One of the lovely things about sports is the free operation of escape mechanism. If the boss has been giving you a rough time all week you can go out to Candlestick Park and vent your spleen on the umpires. Or the Giants.

A sort of reverse escape mechanism goes into operation when the real sports filbert finds things going wrong with his favorite team. For example, when the Giants are in a rut, you can always turn to the 49ers or the Warriors. Always? Not this year. Things are tough all over.

This year, frustrated baseball fans who turn to football or basketball for escape are apt to find themselves down at the corner bar, weeping in their beer. Which is all right if you like weak beer, because the tears are really going to flow.

THE OTHER night I attended a sort of sports wake at a high class wailing wall. The Giants had already been buried, even though an occasional twitch was noticed in the corpus delicti. The 49ers and the Warriors were on the operating table, the blood was flowing, and the prognosis was not good. Even Ben Casey refused to take the case.

The main topic of discussion had to be the 49ers and the efforts of Coach Red Hickey to scrape together a team out of a camp full of paper backs and linemen. Listen to the words of a college football coach, critic, and sometime pro scout.

"I THINK the other coaches of the NFL sold Hickey a bill of goods when they convinced him he had a great team last year. Just like the golf pros who built up Ken Venturi as a week-to-week favorite to take the pressure off themselves.

"False favoritism killed Venturi, and it killed the 49ers. The old men and the young men just don't have it in championship quantity. And don't swallow all this malarkey about big trades for the likes of Ted Connolly. There are mighty few 49ers who would bring top-flight men in an even trade."

Those are words of wisdom. And all the blame can not be laid at the feet of Red Hickey. You have to go all the way to the top to find the answer.

ACTUALLY, the frightening thing is not winning or losing, but the spectre of pay television that looms just over the horizon. No one knows just how much profit is involved in selling sports over a closed circuit, but the estimates are staggering.

Worst of all, teams on pay TV will not even need to be good. If you have any doubts, take a look at the commercial shows we get on the idiot box right now. Put a price tag of two to four bucks on any 49er game and multiply by the people who will buy—even those who will buy from sheer boredom. Sheesh!

All of which is one way to write a whole column trying to avoid facing the fact that the Niners finally make a home exhibition showing at Kezar tomorrow. It has been hard enough to listen and read about the locals; seeing them may prove traumatic.

SOMEHOW, IT won't seem quite the same to watch a Cleveland Brown team without Paul Brown at the helm. There was always a chance to beat the Browns in exhibition, because Paul couldn't care less about the final score of practice games.

Tomorrow may be different, and I'm afraid Morabito, Hickey & Co. will get an ear full of epithets if the Niners live up to advance notices. We shall see.

Soldiers Clinch Tie For Softball Pennant

Two-Rock Army cinched a tie for the championship in the San Anselmo Invitational Softball Tournament last night by whipping Country Club Bowl, 4-2, at Memorial Park.

The win gives the Army nine a 4-1 tourney record and eliminates Country Club (1-2) from title contention. Only Sohner Tree Service and North Bay Flag, both with 2-1 marks, can tie for the championship by winning their final two contests.

Sohner will be out to gain one of those victories at 6:30 tonight when the Treemen battle winless Old Mill Tavern. Jay Leatherwood will pitch for Sohner against either Bob Wade or Marsh Granados for Old Mill.

In tomorrow's doubleheader, North Bay and Sohner will clash at 3:30 p. m. and Fairchild meets Country Club at 6 o'clock.

If either Sohner or North Bay wins its remaining games, a play-off with Two-Rock will be scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 1.

In last night's encounter, Two-Rock scored three times in the first and once in the second to grab the win.

Hal Redic's two - run homer highlighted the first - inning rally.

Country Club tallied twice in the sixth and threatened in the seventh before the Soldiers could get the final out.

123 Runners Tackle Historic Dipsea Race Tomorrow

RECORD-MAKER—Norman Bright nears the finish line on way to a record time of 47 minutes and 22 seconds in the 1937 running of the Dipsea Race. His record, now 26 years old, still stands today.

Independent-Journal Sports

Saturday, Aug. 24, 1963 11

NEW AND OLD—Peter Joseph McArdle (left), winner of last year's Dipsea Race, chats with John Hassard, winner of the first two Dipsea classics ever held, beck in 1905 and 1906. Times haven't changed much since that race in 1906 when Hassard ran the 6.8 miles in 49:55. McArdle's time last year was 47:30, eight seconds off the record mark.

WHAT A CLIMB!—Runner Jack Beggs starts up the long flight of steps, one of the many obstacles on the course, in the 1959 Dipsea Race. The flight is quite a haul, as there are exactly 442 steps on this first major ascent out of Mill Valley.

Golden Gate Club Has Four 'Scratch' Entrants

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Golden Gate Track Club of San Francisco leads the entry list of scratch runners in tomorrow's 53rd classic Dipsea Race which will start at 10 a.m. from Lytton Square in Mill Valley.

The Golden Gate club boasts four runners without handicap among the 123 entrants for the big race. Handicaps range from one to 15 minutes, with the top runners in the event running without handicap. The no - handicap (scratch) runners will start 15 minutes after the highest handicappers blast off over the 6.8 mile course from Mill Valley to Stinson Beach.

Lone Marin Athletic Club runner without handicap will be Darryl Beardall, one of the favorites in tomorrow's race. The four runners from the Golden Gate Track Club are Ronald Davis, David Deubner, James McNutt and Thomas Tuite.

Other scratch runners will be Paul Weston of the East Bay Track Club, Dean Monroe of the San Ramon Track Club, David Wee of the Santa Clara Youth Village and Jeffery Fishback, running unattached.

There will be 17 runners with only a one - minute handicap. They are Eric Ellis and Robin Nelson of the Marin AC; Robert Karman, Scott Maxwell, Samuel Rutland and Donald Vierra of the Golden Gate Track Club; John Aylwin of the Dolphin Swim and Boat Club; Gerald Lujan, Delta Track Club; Guy Ogan, Peninsula Track Club; Archie Scott Jr., San Francisco AC; and Perry Clow, James Coots, Gary Courtwright, Richard Elliott, Richard Mayosky, Russell Marriam Jr., and Douglas Shipp, all unattached.

MEDICAL AID

Finish line for the race will be Main Street, Stinson Beach, where two doctors and an ambulance will be waiting to give aid—if any is needed—after the gruelling run. There were complaints last year after the race because there were no medical facilities set up at the finish line, but the new sponsor, Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce, has taken steps to correct the situation.

There will be trophies given to the winning runners and medals to all who finish. Refreshments will be served all participants, courtesy of the Stinson Beach Progressive Club. Entertainment will be provided by a 25 - piece band through the cooperation of the Musicians Union.

Six mobile units from the Marin Amateur Radio Club will be along the course to keep the spectators informed of the leaders throughout the race.

The record for the event, set back in 1937 by Norman Bright of the Olympic Club, is 47 minutes and 22 seconds.

Middleweights Battle On TV Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — A power-puncher from the land of the Pampas, Juan "Rocky" Rivero of Argentina, tests his wallop tonight against ever-dangerous Jose Gonzalez of Puerto Rico at Madison Square Garden.

The 10-round middleweight bout will be nationally televised over the ABC network at 7 p.m. PDT, and will be the last Saturday night TV fight from the famed Eighth Avenue arena. When boxing returns to the Garden in October, the TV bout of the week will be back on a Friday night basis.

Rivero has knocked out 35 opponents while compiling an over-all record of 38-7-1.

Gonzalez has only six knockouts in a 25-7-1 record, but he is ranked eighth by Ring Magazine and 10th by the World Boxing Assn.

WIFE GIVES HER HUBBY DEER HUNTING LESSONS

Mrs. Don Loftus of Petaluma may have started giving her husband some lessons on deer hunting.

The couple last week went deer hunting at Pillsbury Lake in Lake County, with a camper fully loaded with hunting equipment. As in most past trips, the family came back empty-handed.

But after they returned to their home, Mrs. Loftus decided she would go on a solo hunting expedition. She got permission from the owner of a ranch next to their home to hunt on his property.

Leaving the two daughters with her husband, Mrs. Loftus started off on the "hunt." She was dressed in Capri pants, a blouse and thongs, her hair was in pin-curlers, and a purse was under one arm and a rifle under the other.

She walked about 100 yards, saw a buck and shot it. There is now venison on the table, thanks to Mrs. Loftus, the hunter.

Pott Tries To Ward Off 'Name' Challenge

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Lanky Johnny Pott, the only player to tie together sub-par rounds, hoped his red-hot putter would ward off the big-name challengers today in the third round of the $50,000 American Golf Classic.

The 27-year-old graduate of Louisiana State University, who has been on the tournament trail for seven years but has only three victories to show for his efforts, compiled a three-stroke lead over Bobby Nichols in the first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament.

Dropping birdie putts of 55 and 60 feet, Pott mastered the 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course with a 32-36-68 yesterday following an opening 67 for a five-under-par 135.

Miller Barber, who was tied with Pott for the first-round lead, had a 36-36-72 and dropped into a three-way tie for third place with Australian Bruce Crampton and 26-year-old Dave Hill.

Julius Boros, the U.S. Open champion, also in a tie for the lead after the first round, fell back with a 36-37-73 for a 140 total.

Jack Nicklaus, the PGA and Masters champion, could do no better than another par to tie Boros, Dave Marr and Gay Brewer Jr., while Arnold Palmer, still faced with putting problems, found himself six strokes off the pace with a 70-71-141.

Eleven others, including Gary Player and the Hebert brothers—Lionel and Jay—were grouped at 142.

Nichols, 27, had the best score of the second round. His 33-34-67 put him in a challenging position and he might have been even closer had it not been for a double bogey 6 on the 410-yard No. 14. Oddly enough, Nicklaus also had a bogey on the same hole while Boros, Barber and Palmer all had bogeys. Not one of the leaders birdied the 14th.

Schollander Again Under His Record

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Don Schollander, the swimming wonder boy from California's Santa Clara Swim Club, bettered the world record for the 200 - meter freestyle for the second time in a week in the Japan-U. S. swimming meet today.

Schollander recorded 1:58.4 to crack the listed world mark of 2:00.3 set by Australia's Robert Windle in Tokyo last April.

It was the third time that Schollander had gone under two minutes. He covered the distance in 1:55.8 on July 27 at Los Angeles and clocked 1:55.5 Aug. 17 at Tokyo in the U. S.-Japan meet.

St. Rita's Festival In 32rd Year

CLOSE RESEMBLANCE—A new addition this year to St. Rita's church festival will be a doll booth. Christine DePatta (second from left) holds a doll dressed in the habit worn by Mother Marie Therese Augustine (right) principal of Saint Rita's grammar school. Mrs. Joseph DePatta (left), chairman of the booth, holds a doll dressed in the uniform of girl students as does Carole Ciucci.

The 32nd annual church festival of St. Rita's Catholic Church in Fairfax will be held on the parish grounds Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The theme for this year's festival will be "International Holiday." The festival will begin at 6 p.m. Friday and end at 10 p.m. Sunday.

Activities at the festival will include booths, a country kitchen, and games. New attractions this year will be a dunking booth sponsored by the teen club and a doll booth.

A chicken and spaghetti dinner, sponsored by the Italian Catholic Federation, will be served from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the church hall on Saturday.

ON RACE RELATIONS

Church Of Brethren Sends Suggestions Out In Book

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"All right, you've convinced me. Segregation is wrong and ought to go. But what can I do about it?"

Churches are hearing that question with increasing frequency. It comes from ordinary men - and-women-in-the-pews, who have been much exhorted recently on the evils of racial discrimination.

One denomination, at least, has come up with some specific, practical answers.

The Church of the Brethren is passing out a little pamphlet entitled "Suggestions on Race Relations." It lists more than two dozen concrete things that individuals and local congregations can do.

The pamphlet doesn't waste words rehashing familiar arguments about why church members should be involved. It simply says:

"A racial revolution is upon us. We can neither stop it nor delay it. We can only hope to help guide it by active participation in it as concerned christians.

Here are some of the recommendations for individual action:

1. "Take the initiative in becoming well acquainted with Negroes and include them socially in your circle of friends."

2. "Cordially invite non-white persons who are not active elswhere to your church activities and let them know that they would be welcome as members."

3. "Give a friendly welcome to any non-whites who move into your neighborhood, and encourage your neighbors to accept them."

4. "Offer to rent or sell to non-whites on the same basis as whites, and clearly give this information to your real estate agent."

5. "Let your landlord know that you would welcome non-whites as fellow tenants, and that you favor his renting on an open occupancy basis."

6. "Join and support those community agencies which are working for justice and equality among the races."

7. "Inform the business people with whom you deal that you welcome being served by persons without regard to race."

8. "Hire and promote on the basis of merit without regard to race."

9. "Let your employer and fellow employees know that you favor an equal job opportunity employment policy.

10. "Write to your government leaders, urging them to enact and enforce adequate civil rights legislation."

One of the suggestions is aimed at men of good will who wonder what they ought to do when someone else begins giving vent to his racial prejudices.

The Church of the Brethren advises a quiet but effective rebuttal: Relate a "favorable" story about a Negro known to you who has been kind, brave or helpful.

For congregations, the pamphlet offers this advice:

1. Adopt a clear-cut policy that "membership will be accaccorded with regard to racial background" and make this policy known through local newspapers and other means. One way is to put up a sign near the entrance saying unequivocally: "This church welcomes persons of every race."

2. Institute a special "study course on race relations" for adults and young people, with classes meeting once a week, perhaps on Sunday evening. Concentrate on the real problems of your own community: not those of a distant city or region. Ask the leaders of the Negro community to help you identify "the most serious areas of discrimination" in your town, and to formulate plans for removing them.

3. Organize a "family visitation program" which will enable white and Negro families to exchange visits in each other's homes.

4. Encourage members of the congregation to participate, as representatives of the church, in "non-violent demonstrations and protests, such as sit-ins.

5. Make direct financial contributions, from the congregational budget, to major civil rights organizations.

6. Join "on an equal basis" with a Negro congregation in sponsoring some joint project such as a worship service, vacation bible school, talent night, or a community service undertaking.

7. Cooperate with Catholics and Jews and other Protestant groups in mounting an interfaith attack on race problems in your community. If no local interfaith organization exists, take the lead in forming one.

West Covina Pastor Named To St. Luke

REV. HENRY KENT
Named to St. Luke

Rev. Henry Kent, formerly pastor at the Community Presbyterian Church in West Covina, will take over as pastor at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael on Sept. 1.

Kent will preach his first sermon in the temporary facilities of the church at 10 Bayview Drive on Sept. 7. He will be the guest speaker at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael on Sept. 1.

Kent, who will replace Rev. Ralph C. Shanks, is a graduate of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo. Shanks plans to do graduate work at the University of California.

During Kent's 11 years with the West Covina church, two classroom facilities and a 500-seat sanctuary have been added to the church. The membership increased from 200 to 1,200.

Kent, a native of Holland, was an importer and exporter before World War II. During the war be served as a special agent in the counter-intelligence corps of the U.S. Army.

After the war, Kent continued his business career in New York. Deciding to study for the ministry, Kent got his bachelor of arts degree from UCLA and graduated in 1952 from San Francisco Theological Seminary.

For two years he served in the Presbyterian church in Paramount and then went to West Covina.

Annual Meeting Via Phone Line

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — When St. Paul's Episcopal Church parish held its annual meeting for election of lay officers and reports, eight communicants from neighboring Waverly were prevented from coming by bad weather. But they still took part.

Robert McKell, president of Chillicothe Telephone Co., arranged a loudspeaker telephone hookup. The eight Waverly people gathered at one residence, listened in on the meeting, posed questions and cast their votes with other members of the congregation.

The first unit, to cost $70,000, is composed of a chapel, educational facilities and living quarters. It was designed by Wayne Osaki of San Francisco.

The election of temporary officers will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lindstrom, 571 Miller Creek Road, Marinwood.

Religion From Marx, Freud

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press

Thanks be to God, the Christian scholar said, for the blessings bestowed on the faith by those two athiests, Karl Marx and Sigmund Freud.

It may sound strange for the world's two most noted disbelievers to be cited as sources of value to religion.

Yet among many theologians and philosophers, the thesis often is expressed.

They maintain that Marx, founder of communism, and Freud, founder of psychoanalysis, have contributed stimuli and insights to Judeo-Christianity that were neglected.

A long-standing church concept holds that God frequently may work through antireligious forces and individuals to correct, lead and strengthen the church.

It was at the Anglican World Congress in Toronto, Canada, this month that a British churchman, Canon Max Warren, stressed that divine guidance may come from outside the Christian fold—from other religions, science, and even atheists.

Christian concern for social righteousness "owes not a little, under God, to the stimulus of Karl Marx," he said.

He said the church also owes thanks to God "for His grace at work in Sigmund Freud," in bringing the light of psychiatry to bear on the healing of men's spirits.

Both Marx and Freud spurned religion as wishful thinking. Marx saw it as a kind of mass tranquilizer to obscure the exploitation of common people.

Freud considered it a kind of obsessional neurosis, brought on by desire for paradise beyond the difficulties and death of earthly existence.

Nevertheless, the psychoanalytic procedures he developed are widely credited with deepening understanding of Christ's teachings, and aiding in their application.

Theologian Paul Tillich says that Freud's approach of accepting, rather than condemning, the guilt-ridden was the very heart of Christ's gospel of forgiveness — the "acceptance of the unacceptable."

As for Marx, the idea of ties between his influence and Christianity is a matter of frequent analysis in academic circles.

In the current issue of Jubilee, a national Roman Catholic monthly, British Catholic philosopher R. C. Zaehner says that "Marxism is not old enough yet to realize that it has no essential quarrel with religion."

He says that communism's persecution of religion is in conflight with Marx's original theory that it would disappear automatically and that Stalinist totalitarianism was a "radical distortion" of original Marxism.

It "put a tyrant in the place of God," he says, adding that "a revolution in post-Stalinist thought" is now going on.

Christianity, he said, is not contrary, it has every reason to welcome it as an ordered alternative to unbridled capitalism.

Pastor Records Songs To Finance Club

PATERSON, N. J. (AP)—The Rev. Ralph Attanasio, 35, was so anxious to give boys in trouble a second chance he took to recording popular songs.

His discs netted enough money to convert an abandoned church into a club that now boasts 100 members.

Children Can Learn About Love Of God

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Christian education programs tend to tell children about God's love without showing them they can experience it even while still a child, the Rev. Dr. David R. Hunter, an Episcopal Church leader, told a meeting here.

Aside from a "few fleeting visits with God through teaching the child to pray — God's presence in the child's life . . . does not find a place in the program," he said. He said that just as a child can respond to parental love without fully understanding, so a child can respond to God's love without putting it off into the future.

School Registration

Registration for church school classes at the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Richardson Bay, 240 Tiburon Boulevard, will be held at 9:45 a.m. Sept. 8 in the sanctuary, according to school superintendent Mrs. Jess Heller.

Presbyterians At Point Reyes Get Pastor

Rev. Richard B. Hoadley of 190 Park Street, San Rafael, has been named the new pastor of the Point Reyes Presbyterian Church.

Hoadley, who will be ordained in October in the San Francisco church where he is serving as assistant pastor while attending San Francisco Theological Seminary, will preach his first sermon on Sept. 8.

Hoadley and his wife, who teaches in the San Jose School District, will move to a home at White House Pool, Inverness Park.

A pot luck dinner will be served on Sept. 7 at the West Marin Community Center in honor of the Hoadleys and Rev. Albert Kurtz.

Youth Crusade All Next Week

"Living for Jesus" is the theme of a "Kids Krusade" to be held at the Southern Marin Assembly of God Church, East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues, tomorrow through Friday.

The crusade, to begin at 7 p.m. each day, will be conducted for children, ages five to 12, by Rev. Edward Weising, a graduate of Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Mass.

WITH A LITTLE PAINT

this home could be a palace! It already has the vaulted ceiling and the quality construction of a palace. The interior of the home just needs some sprucing up! And besides the 3 bedrms., 2 baths, and large modern kitchen, you could easily convert the 2 car garage into a huge family room! Nothing to do in the yard but water occasionally. It looks professionally landscaped, for the easiest of care. Because it needs some work, the price has been reduced to $33,600 . . . but you'll see for yourself that it's worth more.

Almonte Tax To Drop Six Cents

Tax rate for the Almonte Sanitary District will drop six cents from what the board of directors had previously set, Robert A. Alexander, chairman, said yesterday. It will be 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation instead of 36 cents.

Reason for the drop, according to Alexander, is that the county assessor's office, in its final assessment figures of the district, has indicated a valuation higher than the Almonte board's estimate.

Alexander reported that the board will meet on Wednesday of next week instead of on its regular meeting date of Monday.

Marin Boundary Group Approves Lines For Schools

The Marin County Boundary Commission gave formal approval yesterday to the boundaries outlined for the Marin portion of a proposed unionization of school districts in Marin and Sonoma counties.

The move is expected to have little effect on moving the proposal closer to actuality, Edwin L. Blackmore, coordinator of rural education in Marin explained.

The Sonoma County Boundary Commission has postponed until Sept. 3 its consideration of the boundaries of the Sonoma districts in the proposed unionization.

In addition, county counsels on each side disagree upon various legal requirements and interpretations.

One large district is planned to be made up from the Point Reyes, West Marin and Tomales Bay elementary school districts in Marin; the American Valley district, with portions of it now in both counties; and the Watson, Bodega Bay and most of the Bloomfield elementary districts in Sonoma. All now are in the Tomales High School district.

Group Asks New Name For Cove

Renaming of Hospital Cove on the northwest side of Angel Island was requested yesterday by the California Marine Parks and Harbors Assn. in honor of one of the association's past presidents.

Directors of the association, at a meeting in the St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco, adopted a resolution asking the State Division of Beaches and Parks to name the cove Winslow Cove, for Charles A. Winslow of 205 Martinique Avenue, Tiburon, because of "his outstanding efforts as president of the Angel Island Foundation."

Winslow is president emeritus of the parks and harbors associtaion. The directors also voted to ask the division of beaches and parks to allow them "to review any plans" which the state may have for development of Angel Island.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Assumptions, Guesses Dangerous When Bite Might Mean Rabies Case

VAN DELLEN

Chance plays a role in survival. Dr. Eugene A. Hildreth tells of a 4-year-old boy who was playing in the yard when a dog walked by.

He called to the animal and as it came toward him, the child became frightened and began to run. The dog knocked him down and bit him on the cheek.

An 11-year-old boy saw the incident and identified the dog as belonging to a neighbor. This animal was put under quarantine. Meanwhile, the physician cleaned the child's wound and suggested that the vaccine be withheld pending determination of the dog's condition. The animal remained healthy and the mishap was forgotten. But one month later the bitten child developed rabies and was dead within a week.

MHAT DOES THIS have to do with chance? The parents learned ofter the boy's death that a stray dog of the same breed as the neighbor's, but of different color than the accused animal, was reported to have had rabies. It had been picked up by police and destroyed on the recommendation of a veterinarian.

This tragic story demonstrates that assumptions and guesses can be dangerous. As a rule the circumstances of the biting incident are an important factor in determining whether the vaccine is needed.

A dog that bites after it is teased or provoked usually is healthy. In addition, animals raised in protected environment, such as in a city home ,are not likely to be exposed to rabies. On the other hand, the tyke who was biten on the face and had the skin broken had the worst combination of all. In some instances, the antiserum and vaccine are helpless to prevent rabies unless given within 72 hours.

IN 1953 A RABID wolf ran amuck in Iran and 32 people were bitten. None was treated adequately and 15 died. The mortality was 40 per cent among victims ipped on the head and neck but only 10 per cent of those with bites on the limbs or trunk died.

In 1954 a similar attack occurred in Iran! 29 were bitten —18 on the head and neck. This time the victims were treated with the vaccine, anti-rabies serum, or both. Four developed rabies, only one of whom had received both treat-treatments is regarded as the most effective preventative but it must be given early.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

NIGHT SHAMPOOING

J. V. writes: My 13-year-old daughter washes her hair at night and goes to bed while it is still wet. I tell her she will get sinus trouble. Did I claim right or wrong?

REPLY

Wrong. Wet hair will do more harm to the pillow than to your daughter. I assume the room is not too cold and she does not sleep in a draft.

RETAINS FIGURE

Mrs. E. K. writes: I'm 65 years old and have weighed 110 pounds most of my adult life. Is it unusual to remain the same weight for so long?

REPLY

Yes. I know of several people who share your experience.

RESENTMENT AND JOINTS

K. C. wries: Can strong feelings of resentment cause arthritis?

REPLY

The cause of arthritis is not known but some individuals develop pain in the joints when emotionally disturbed.

ETHER STILL USED

M. J. writes: Is ther obsolete as an anesthetic?

REPLY

No. It is still used, especially when full relaxation is needed.

China Camp Area Annexation Plan Passes Hurdle

The first step was taken yesterday in annexation to San Rafael of a 375 acre parcel of land which includes China Camp.

The area proposed for annexation is on the northeast boundary of the city, a generally rectangular piece going along San Pablo Bay to the north and contiguous with the Marin Bay development further inland. The boundaries of the area were approved this morning at a meeting of the Marin County Boundary Commission and further action now is up to the City of San Rafael.

The land was proposed for annexation by Latipac, Inc., San Rafael, but now is in the process of being sold to the Draper Companies which Tuesday announced purchase of the Marin Bay Development.

Offices of the Latipac Company would make no commitment today that the annexation would proceed but hinted at its withdrawal. No officers of the Draper Companies were available for comment this morning on their plans for the land.

Indonesian Budget

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)— Indonesia's parliament has approved over leftist opposition a record 700 billion rupiah two-year budget that preserves the government's crash economic stabilization program.

After parliamentary approval last night the official Antara News Agency said economic reform regulations adopted May 26 will be carried out. These included a 300 to 500 per cent increase in public utility rates, a relazation of rigid price controls to give producers more leeway, and an indirect devaluation of the rupiah to 315 for $1 to provide incentives to producers and exporters.

Shoreline And Hills Of Sausalito

Clearly delineated by the curves of Highway 101 and the irregular shoreline of San Francisco and Richardson bays, the densely populated section of Sausalito fits into a compact package.

Actually the city limits extend above the highway to include residents on Wolf Back Ridge. Below them, between the highway and Bridgeway lies the heart of Sausalito. Winding roads up the hillsides which fit the contours of the land, rectangular road patterns in flat areas, the industrial area of Marinship and the yacht harbors can be seen clearly in this photograph taken just east of the Golden Gate Bridge.

The central business district is just to the left of the ferry boat Berkeley and the Spinacker Restaurant on the sandspit. Further down are the roofs of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers buildings.

Marin City is to the left of where the highway runs parallel to Richardson Bay. Tamalpais Valley lies over the hills from Marin City. The four lanes of Miller Avenue lead up into the heart of Mill Valley which stretches up the hillside to Mount Tamalpais.

Along the shoreline of the bay are the communities of Strawberry, Harbor Point, Bel Aire, Belvedere Gardens and Little Reed Heights. In the upper right corner of the photo are Corte Madera, Larkspur, communities in the Ross Valley and San Anselmo and the western portion of San Rafael. (Aero Photographers photo)

TAKING DEAD AIM at one of the targets on the Santa Venetia range of the Northwoods Bowman's Club are archers Don Fallgreen of Fairfax, left, and Fred Del Pino of San Anselmo. Actually, the non-profit organization maintains three ranges on approximately 87 acres of wooded hilltop and hillside land it has rented from Latipac Land Development Co. There are 42 targets in all to challenge the markmanship of the bow-and-arrow enthusiasts. (Photo by Robert Cadwallader)

Archery—One Of Man's Oldest Sports

By LEE CADWALLADER

Fred Del Pino of San Anselmo stands in the shade of a terra cotta-barked madrone on a wooded hilltop in Santa Venetia. With Don Fallgreen of Fairfax, he checks the field archery target 85 yards ahead.

Samantha, Del Pino's dog, pauses at his right heel and seems to study the target, too. Fred stands at the stake, establishes a firm and comfortable stance, then places his arrow on the string.

While he focuses down on the target set in the shade of California live oaks and laurels on the edge of a marsh, Fallgreen quietly takes a final drag on his cigarette and extinguishes it in the juice can nailed to a stake by some volunteer from the Northwoods Bowman's Club.

HE TURNS around at the sound of the released arrow and comments, after checking the target, "Good shot, Fred!"

The archers and escort descend from their shooting position on steps cut out of the hard dry clay in the steep hillside and stride over the marsh on a boardwalk toward one of the 42 targets constructed and maintained by the 15-year-old club.

This non-profit organization maintains three ranges on approximately 87 acres rented to them by the Latipac Land Development Co. (developers of Peacock Gap at Marin Bay) for a dollar a month.

It is located in Santa Venetia on San Pedro Road about a mile beyond Joe's Boat Landing and on the way to China Camp in the kind of country you hear pre-Golden Gate Bridge "old - timers" talk about.

HERE YOU can feast your eyes with complete abandon upon meandering streams and egrets in the tule grass and native plants on the rugged hillsides.

Relax, your sensibilities won't be jarred by utility poles. Nor will you see scars from bulldozers—not yet.

Perhaps you don't need any more than this. But if you do want more, you can have a challenging sport and additional healthful exercise by being an archer.

ARCHERY CAN be a purely personal sport with bowman working only against his own scores, or it can be a competitive challenge.

For those who enjoy competition, the club has a tournament every month and a club championship once a year.

Also, every spring the Northwoods Bowmen play host to the largest variable handicap in California, sponsored by the Northern California Field Archery Assn. Last year they had about 300 guests representing approximately nine Bay Area clubs.

FURTHER SOCIAL activities include annual beach picnics, Christmas parties, and so forth. But as a rule you find that people who go to the time, trouble and expense of equipping themselves for archery and then go still further to actually practice the sport are not doing it to be in the sport-social swim; they do it because they are genuinely attracted to this, one of the oldest of man's sports.

There are, according to various estimates, between five and 10 million archers in the United States today.

Archery has become more firmly fixed as a part of our national sports consciousness than it ever has been before. There are probably more active archers in the United States now than there were in the whole of Europe at the time of the Hundred Years War—and we could certainly muster more bowmen than Genghis Khan.

FRED DEL PINO, a member who at one time or another has held just about every office in the club, says,

Audio for Teaching Machines — About a year and a half ago I had the pleasure of working with Mr. P. Miller, Assistant Vice President and Director of Training & Development for Crocker-Anglo National Bank. At the Bank Service Center they use IBM bank proof machines for sorting checks. Mr. Miller wanted to devise a system using tape recorders to train personnel to use the IBM machines.

The first part of the problem was solved by using small portable monaural tape recorders, and custom building plug-in boxes for plugging in several headsets. In order to eliminate outside noises, modern stereo headsets with the large foam ear cushions were used. The headsets were wired for monaural operation. Then Mr. Miller prepared tapes to be used on the recorders. The tapes explained each switch, function, operation, how and what to do, and these explanations followed a proper sequence for learning how to operate and use the IBM machines. For example: the voice on the tape might sound something like this to the trainee, "Look to your left and you will see a black switch marked power. It is located about 6 inches above and to the left of your knee. Turn the switch to the on position. You will now hear a humming sound, and you will see that a light came on directly above the power switch. The switch you have just turned on is the master power switch. Directly ahead at eye level, etc...."

By placing a trainee at a machine with a tape recorder at her side and a headset on her head, she proceeds to learn to operate the machine. She progresses at her own pace, doing each function as outlined by the taped voice. Since the tape can be repeated over and over again, a slower student can go over any of the more difficult parts..

A few weeks ago I was talking with Mr. Miller about the above program and he told me some amazing facts. He said that in the past it took from 6 months to a year to train an operator. During this training period, it took supervisory personnel several months to know if the employee trainee had the necessary adaptability to be a good operator. Now, with the tape training program, supervisors can tell in one week if the trainee has the necessary qualifications. But the most amazing fact is that in three weeks of tape training, the employee is ready for work, is a better operator, makes less errors, and knows more about the machine than those taught by previous methods.

ARCHERY IS A SPORT for all ages and for every member of the family. That was the theme of this demonstration staged by members of the Northwoods Bowman's Club at the Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross. Youngsters got some expert instruction in the proper technique for letting fly with the arrows. Estimates of the number of Americans now practicing archery range from five to 10 million.

Everyone Can Join The Fun

Archery Holds Interest Of Entire Family

"Archery is a healthful outdoor and indoor participation sport that can be taken in all degrees. Whole families, from grandparents to grandchildren, enjoy the various archery games.

"We have organized hunting trips for rabbits and carp and an occasional shark-hunting trip. Most of the members hunt deer during the special archery season.

"Archers, loving the outdoors, are naturally conservationists. Many Northwoods members, along with their membership in the Northern California Field Archery Assn., are also members of the Associated Sportsmen of California and, through that organization, a part of the California Wild Life Federation.

To illustrate Del Pino's belief that archery can be enjoyed by everyone, the five paraplegic members of the Indoor Sports Club who use one range are now trying to devise some plan that will enable their blind members to join them.

Wayne Powell, Walter Hughes, Kay Leff, Midge Christie and Bob Thomas were introduced to archery on flat, convenient Albert Field.

PARAPLEGICS, TOO, can enjoy the fun of archery. But as soon as they became skillful, they felt the need for more shade and the opportunity to enjoy the beautiful country off San Pedro Road. At the same time, they offer their families the chance to enjoy the sport with them.

THEIR COACH, Hal Markinson of San Anselmo, then made arrangements for them to use the range every Sunday morning.

Although they now participate as members of separate, cooperating clubs, some of the Indoor Sports group are so enthusiastic about their new sport that they plan to join the Northwoods Bowman's Club.

NO IDLE TIME

The Busy Children Of Scott Highlands

Some children, no doubt, have found time hanging heavy on their hands during the summer vacation weeks now coming to a close. And their mothers have heard more than once that old complaint: "There's nothing to do."

Other youngsters have entered energetically into the planned play and recreational programs provided by their communities and service organizations.

THERE IS STILL a third group—those ingenious boys and girls who create their own pastimes.

The youngsters in Mill Valley's Scott Highlands definitely belong to this last group.

There has been no "vegetating" there. Instead, the children have used their imaginations and talents to channel their boundless energies and creative instincts into a number of unusual projects.

Their 1963 "summer season" was kicked off with an art exhibit prepared by Tom Kiechle, 12, and Steve Seifert, 11, who displayed their parents', grandparents' and their own works of art in the Richard Kiechles' backyard. Coffee and punch were served, and the proceeds used to buy additional art supplies. This enabled the boys to stage a bigger, more diversified "fair" later in the season with David Laughead and Peter Barrett assisting them in staffing the booths and presenting a play.

NEXT CAME an original play, "The Life of a Hobo," presented in the basement of the Robert Lawson home. Larry Seifert, 7, played the title role. Fellow actors were Libby Kerrigan, 10, and Elizabeth, Melinda and Susan Lawson, 10, 8 and 5. The children wrote the five-act script, did the costuming, the make-up, props and advertising posters. Steve Seifert served as curtain-puller and general handyman.

At the Robert Cook home a circus was staged. Participants included Lynn, Jean and Clair Jolly, 12, 10 and 5; Linda and Frances Cook, 13 and 10; Ricky Fair, 11; Peter Kerrigan, 5, and Billy Walker, 5, who stole the show with his "strong man" act. So successful was the show, a repeat performance was held

IMPRESSARIO FOR SOME of the events staged by the busy Scott Highlands children this summer was 12-year-old Tom Kiechle, right. His productions included an art show and an art fair, and here he does a sidewalk portrait of 7-year-old Leslie Seifert, attired for her leading role in the play, "The Life of a Hobo." Watching Tom's "art-in-action" demonstration is Peter Barrett, 10, who assisted with the fair. (Independent-Journal photos)

A DIFFERENT KIND of painting is performed by some young Scott Highlands make-up artists. Left to right, the artists and their subjects are Linda Cook, 13, Claire Jolly, 5, Melissa Lawson, 8, and Betty Lawson, 10. The children engaged in meticulous research to make certain that their make-up, costumes, stage settings and sound effects were as professional as possible. And all adult help was rejected.

FRANKENSTEIN'S MONSTER (busy Steve Seifert, 11) is dragged from his grave by pal Tom Kiechle, 12, who wants him to forsake drama for a few minutes and give him a hand with the preparations for the art festival. At right, back on the stage, the monster proceeds to strangle Eygore (Cindy Cagwin, 11) in a tense scene from "Wolfman Meets Frankenstein." (Independent Journal photos) before another SRO crowd the following week. And proceeds were sent to the Hospital Ship Hope.

"Wolfman Meets Frankenstein," a play in "three dimensions," was held in the yard of the Jim Kerrigans. Playhouses, trees, fence and swimming pool were used for the wide-screen effect.

WOLFMAN (Libby Kerrigan) came to a dramatic end by falling into the pool after being shot by Dr. Frankenstein (Elizabeth Lawson).

Striking monster costumes and make-up were worn by Steve Seifert as the Monster and Cindy Cagwin, 11, as Eygore. Susan Lawson and Peter Kerrigan, 5, were cast as policemen.

DECLINING parental help, the youngsters researched books for ideas on staging, costuming, display arts, make-up, etc. The result was a tremendous number of hours devoted to each project—and no idle time among the Scott Highlands children.

Mrs. Robert Lawson, one of the Scott Highlands mothers, notes that "we were especially impressed by the great respect the children showed for one another's talents as they allowed even the youngest ones to appear in roles in keeping with their ages."

Future plans? A "spook show" and a fashion show. Then school time will be on hand again. But there will be another summer. And, who knows? Perhaps a water ballet, a hobby show, a musical comedy or a concert.

Notes Mrs. Lawson: "It really wouldn't surprise us parents too much to see placards going up in Scott Highlands publicizing an ice show. These children could probably figure out a way of doing it."

By DAVID BELL

Imagine carrying a snarling Russian bear on your lap while flying on a commercial airliner from New York to San Francisco!

That was the recent experience of a friend of Mill Valley artist H. Kenneth McCurdy. The bear, fortunately, despite its ferocious appearance, had long before been made into a fur rug; nevertheless, fellow passengers viewed it with surprise and caution, and they could hardly believe their ears when they were told it was raw material for a California artist.

Strange materials, however, are commonplace with McCurdy. He has worked successfully with marble, plastic, oils, and various metals. Now he is turning his efforts toward the use of natural fur as a fine art medium.

"THE TEXTURE of fur and its subtle color variations have fascinated me for some time," says McCurdy, who earlier this summer directed and designed the "Art in Action" at the Marin Art and Garden Fair. He is currently directing preparations for the Sausalito Art Fair, where his work— including one of his rugs—will be seen on the Central School grounds next weekend. The Sausalito art festival will open next Saturday and run through Monday.

"Locating furs of the proper color and texture," he says, "had been a tedious, almost impossible job until I hit on the idea of ransacking Goodwill Stores and salvage shops, which have long been fruitful hunting grounds for Bay Area artists. There for as little as $3 I sometimes find a coat with enough usable fur to be cut into a shape that fits one of my designs.

"And, of course, my friends are a big help. I ask them to keep a sharp eye out for any kind of usable fur, which is exactly why a Russian bear flew out here via airliner on a passenger's lap; the airline looked askance and would not accept it as baggage."

"I BEGIN by having a design or picture in mind," McCurdy explains, "and then start looking for suitable furs. Once found, the furs are cleaned and vacuumed, then cut into various shapes and cemented with latex to old carpets which have also been cut to shape and are used for backing.

McCurdy, who does his rug-making on the floor of his studio in his home at 67 Presidio, Mill Valley, says each one takes about 20 hours of work over a three-week period. He has completed four to date.

HEAVIER FURS such as seal, beaver and bear are preferred.

He is a pioneer sculptor and painter in these media, having started with plastics as early as 1959, and has exhibited his plastic and metal creations at a number of San Francisco galleries, including

Bolles, Fredric Hobbs Fine Art, and the Vorpal Gallery.

McCURDY ALSO makes practical, striking furniture from old car parts, both modern and what might be called "Gothic Traditional," for one of his most startling pieces is a baronial throne-like chair which he has titled "The Falcon." It is made from the hood of an old Ford truck padded with foam rubber and upholstered with a black bear pelt, and surmounted with a large predatory falcon's head of burnished yellow brass.

Whoever sits in this chair, he claims, feels either menaced or protected, depending upon his psychological make-up.

Some of McCurdy's unusual work can be seen presently at the Frame Ways Gallery in Mill Valley.

Photographer Trades Camera For Typewriter And A Novel

By DON KEOWN

THE LEARNING TREE by Gordon Parks, Harper & Row, 303 pages, $4.95.

Publisher Harper & Row has designated its new novelist, Negro Gordon Parks, as "a find," and, indeed, his "The Learning Tree" does demonstrate great promise.

It is the story of a colored boy growing up in a southeastern Kansas town of the 1920s. Newt Winger has all the usual problems of a lad beginning to emerge from childhood. But he also has those special problems imposed upon him by society because of his race.

Parks, a former Life magazine photographer and Office of War Information correspondent, tells the story—much of it based upon his own early experiences—with skill and sensitivity. There is a touch of the Tom Sawyer kind of charm that rural boyhood so often invokes. But this does not soften Park's indictment of Border State society for the tragic consequences its peculiar type of discrimination has inflicted upon its younger victims. Parks does not gloss over the humiliation, squalor, poverty and ignorance that second class citizenship spawns.

We grew up in a small Kansas town at just about the same time as Park's Newt Winger. (He refers to his Cherokee Flats with its population of 6,000 as a "villiage," but in the Kansas we knew that was not a village or even a town—it was a city.) Our recollections of white-Negro relationships do not jibe with those of Parks. And we do not think it is entirely a matter of racial viewpoint.

Parks' whites vary radically, ranging from kindly champions of the Negro to red-necked Negro haters every bit as bitter as the poor whites of the Deep South. Our own recollection is of a different relationship, equally cruel and no more defensible. The whites exhibited a rather remarkable solidarity in their attitudes toward their black fellow townsmen—a basic indifference that was sometimes shaded by condescension, at other times by impatience and even distaste. We recall no champions actively engaged in improving the Negroes' plight. And very few whites who harbored actual hatred. Certainly there was no racial violence such as Parks describes in his book and his article in Aug. 16 issue of Life magazine.

Negro children attended school with us and were not abused. But they were ignored and neglected. Their ragged clothing, ill-fitting hand-me-down shoes and obvious dietary deficiencies were matters of no concern to the rest of the community. It was the accepted situation—a situation that we now remember with shame, but the situation that existed.

We suspect that the difference between our hometown and "Cherokee Flats" is that the former, while only two miles north of the Jim Crow line, bordered on Oklahoma, whereas the latter seems closer to Missouri where southern racial patterns were harder than in the Sooner State.

But even if "The Learning Tree" is indicative of the situation in but one section of one border state—it is nevertheless provocative and meaningful reading. And it may well mark the debut of a writer who will grow to the stature of major novelist.

Upper-Middleclass Satirized Superbly

On the surface this novel is a picture of the lives, loves and careers of eight Vassar graduates, class of '33, who had lived together in a group at college.

Actually, I believe, this is the most skillful and accurate satire ever written on eight subtly different upper-middleclass levels in America during the 1930s and 1940s.

Mary McCarthy not only succeeds where John O'Hara fails in reproducing these same levels of society, but she also rubs it in humorously by doing a satire on his style of love scene.

Where you say, "Oh yes, he's describing some of Aunt Cornelia's friends" when you read O'Hara—here you will say, "My gosh, I didn't know Mary McCarthy knows MY Aunt Cornelia!"

The character representing the top level is superbly done. Beautiful, perfect manners, perfect taste, she is the envy of all. But she can't be reached, doesn't like to be touched, is incapable of honest emotion, and will consequently bring about extinction of her class.

Good satire is rare in America today. Mary McCarthy here allows us to look, to laugh, to understand and to feel empathy with "the group."

Sleuths & Suspense

UNDERTOW by Desmond Cory, Walker and Co., 216 pages, $3.50.

Seems like everyone is writing spy thrillers these days, but England's Desmond Cory is no newcomer to the field. He is immensely popular in his native land, and due to pick up a considerable following in this country.

His "Undertow" is one of those freewheeling yarns about international espionage featuring an imaginative but unlikely plot, and, as the chief characters, special agents whose capabilities and casual attitudes toward death are deliberately and wildly exaggerated.

Two retired British agents, in Spain, are caught in the middle of a lethal battle of wits between the Spanish secret police and equally-deadly Soviet spies—including, of course, one beautiful and sexy girl.

There is a lot of action, much violence and considerable sex.

All you have to do is suspend your "believability standards" for the duration of the book, and you'll be treated to some delightful reading.

Atom Subs—Their Geneology And The Men Behind Them

A little oversimplified, this book goes into great detail on the geneology and history of the atomic subs and the development of the Polaris missile.

A little more space might have been devoted to details of the ships' operation, although discussion of control devices is interesting.

Polmar is at his best, however, in discussing some of the men who made the subs possible, and especially in his remarks on Admiral Hyman Rickover, who interviewed prospective sub commanders after seating them in a chair with front legs shorter than the back, giving them a sinking feeling.

Associate editor of the Navy Times, Polmar has covered the American force at sea for years.

One major drawback of the book is that it was obviously ready for publication at the time of the Thresher disaster. Four paragraphs were thrown in about the matter, but the publisher should have waited to get a more complete story into print.

"IS IT BETTER TO SEND DRYCLEANING ON MONDAYS?"

It is better to send drycleaning whenever garments need cleaning, regardless of the day of the week. I think, perhaps, I know what is behind your question. For years, there has been an "old wives' tale" circulating that a drycleaner's solvent is cleaner on the first of the week than it is later on. That is nonsense. All modern cleaners continuously filter and distill their drycleaning solvent, over and over, hour after hour, day after day. Garments are always cleaned in freshly filtered and distilled solvent.

It is possible that the drycleaner's filtering or distilling system may become faulty, but there are few drycleaners left these days who are not very particular about this aspect of their cleaning. They know that whenever you send a garment you expect to have it cleaned in fresh solvent, no matter what day of the week or what hour of the day you send it. So, the best time to send a garment to your cleaner is whenever it should be cleaned. There is no better time.

THE STEREO SCENE

Bartok And Beethoven By Hungarians And Alma Trio

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, FM & Cultural Guide

BARTOK: The Six String quartets (complete) — the Hungarian String Quartet — Deutsche Grammophon Stereo SLPM 138650/52:

Best of the three versions of the completed quartets now on LP.

These works are widely regarded as the most important pieces of chamber music in the strong quartet-form since Beethoven. They usher the listener into a different world than the world of Bartok's orchestral music.

The performers are called upon for a fantastic variety of effects in this music, playing of quarter tones to various methods of striking the strings for unusual effects.

Contrary to the expected arrangement of these six quartets beginning with the simplest and most melodic and moving toward the most complex and atonal, the order is just reversed—much as it is in the three Bartok piano concerti. Therefore the Fifth and Sixth Quartets are the most immediately approachable, with simple diatonic melodies and easy rhythms.

The music itself calls for detailed analysis with score in hand and record on turntable—absolutely fascinating contemporary music without partaking of the 12-tone system at all.

The professional quality of these works is matched fully by the professional performances of the Hungarian Quartet which has performed throughout the world since its formation in 1935. The stereo sound and quiet surface are a boon to close aural examination of the music.

BEETHOVEN: Trios in D, Opus 70, No. 1 and in E Flat, Opus 70, No. 2; the Alma Trio —Decca Stereo DL 710064:

These pieces were composed during an especially busy year for Beethoven—he also turned out the 5th and 6th symphonies and the "Emperor Piano Concerto."

The "Trio in D" is known as the "Ghost" and boasts perhaps the slowest slow movement in music, heavy with Gothic gloom.

A presto finale wakes up dozing listeners.

The Alma Trio was organized in California in 1944 and has a number of fine chamber music recordings to its credit — this one being the most recent.

GARDENING PAGE

Accent The Scent When You Plant

Fragrance is a joy to encounter in the garden. However brief in passing, it stimulates pleasant responses—a memory from some forgotten past or a promise of happy times ahead. It's worth striving for in planting your garden.

The matter of fragrance becomes ever more important, too, for in breeding bigger and better blooms on plants, plantsmen often hybridize the scent right out of them. The most beautiful carnations, for instance, often lack the scent of their spicy, if common, parents a few generations back.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests that we plant a few shrubs and other plants strictly for the scent they impart to their garden surroundings.

THE ORANGE Jessamine is one shrub that deserves more attention. An exceptionally handsome shrub, it is fine of texture with light-green foliage for foundation plantings, for large containers or for an informal hedgerow. The fragrance comes from a late-spring to mid-summer crop of white flowers, these scattering over the remaining weeks of summer to impart a lingering scent.

Orange Jessamine is available in two sizes—a compact form and a taller, more arborescent form. The former may be planted in tubs in areas where winter temperatures drop much below 25 degrees. Give either form mostly sun and a rich, well-drained soil with plenty of water during the dry season.

The Night Scented Jasmine —not a jasmine at all, but like one in its scent—is an example of a shrub which can be planted for perfume alone.

The bloom is strictly nothing to write home about on this one. At night, however, especially on warm summer nights, they are intensely fragrant and will fill the garden with pungent perfume. Here is a scent that can be almost overpowering when planted right outside a bedroom window, but taken in moderation, as from an upwind corner of the garden, it can make the summer night complete.

ONE SHRUB we plant both for bloom and perfume is the gardenia, for it excells in both. Once largely grown in Southern California, gardenias are now standard fare in our part of the state. In the garden border, or in a sunroom pot, they are both fun to grow and a joy to sniff when picked for corsages or for dish arrangements. Three or four blooms in a shallow vase will fill the house with their scent and when grown in a patio area, they make outdoor living a downright pleasure.

We can't talk about garden scents without mentioning that common old favorite, the honeysuckle. Hall's Japanese Honeysuckle, especially, is a familiar friend from the past and it still produces a greater abundance of bloom and scent than other members of the family.

Plant Tree Peonies If You Want Bushes Full Of Beauty

Almost everyone who comes to California from more easterly points has had some experience with growing peonies.

They wonder, and rightfully, why more Californians don't grow these wonderfully floriferous plants.

WHILE PEONIES are not well-adapted to the southern parts of our state, they can be grown with good success here in Northern California — especially those shrubby varieties which the nurserymen call "Tree Peonies." These are grown in California almost to the exclusion of the herbaceous types grown back East, for they require less winter chilling and seem to do an all around better job here.

"Tree Peonies" are really deciduous shrubs of only average size. Rather uncompromising in growth habits, they make up for any drawback in this respect with the magnificent blooms in late spring.

At their largest, these blooms are almost a foot across. And the color selection is all you could ask — with delicate flesh pinks, yellows, buff, bronze and you-name-it colors to choose from.

THE LEAVES of a bush peony are attractive, also somewhat resembling a large-leaf maple and often hinting at bronze tones during late summer days, before they drop off in the fall.

Tree peonies do best in a sunny spot here along the coast. They like a maximum of winter chilling, so choose a spot, if you can, that won't catch the sun in winter.

Prepare the soil in advance of planting with manure and leaf mold or compost. The soil should be moist at planting time and moisture should always be available. Set the plants slightly lower in the ground than they were in the nursery container and prune them back at planting time to about two good buds.

Each spring, the plants can be pruned back slightly.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

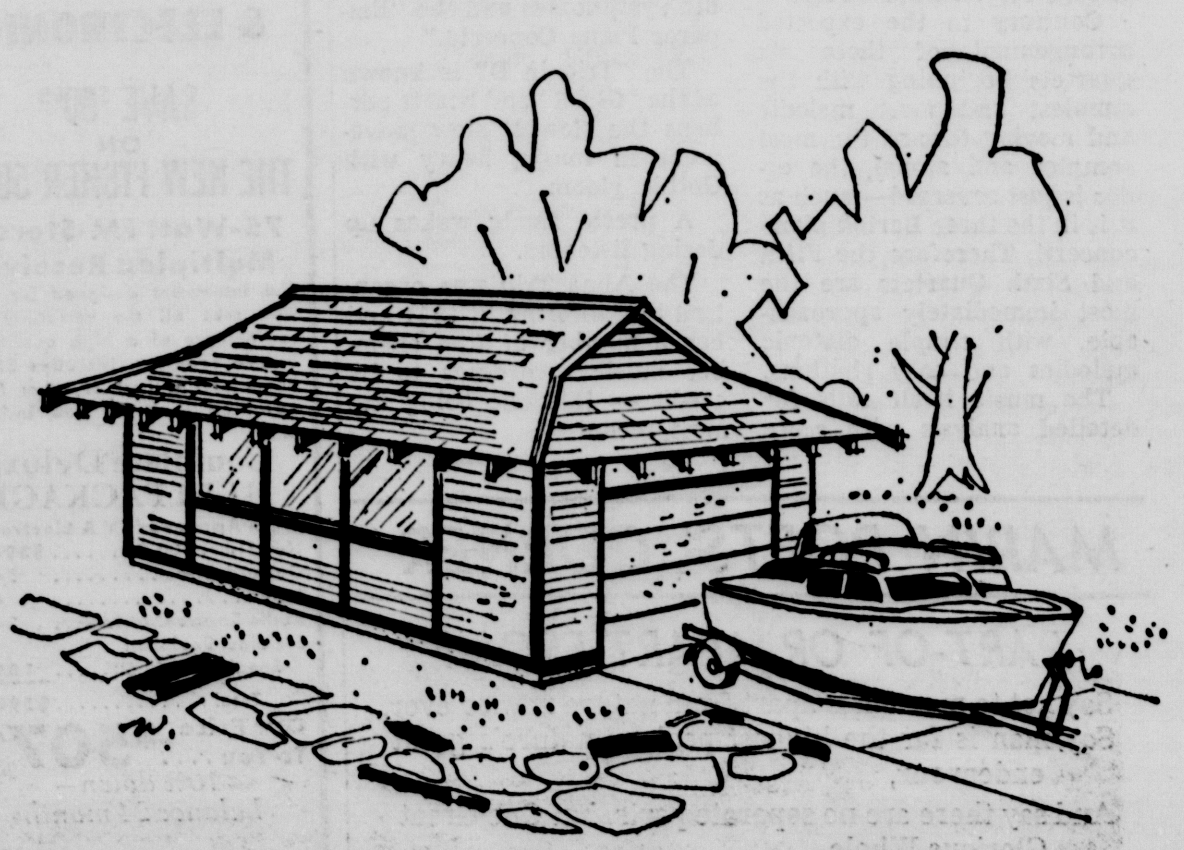
- Dahlias should be watered regularly and deeply. Be sure to stake tall plants to keep them from toppling under the weight of their blooms.
- Well-fed fuchsias will continue blooming into fall. Use an acid-type food or fish fertilizer.
- Many of your favorite perennials can be sown in flats this month. Check the seed rack at your local nursery.

THE HANDYMAN'S CORNER



YOU CAN WRITE Home Ports, Dept. PR, West Coast Lumbermen's Assn., 1410 S. W. Morrison, Portland 5, Ore., for a free copy of the new, full-color booklet entitled "Home Ports for Trailer Sailors." It contains design ideas and plans for building separate home boat ports such as the structure shown above, or for expanding your garage to serve the purpose.

THE MARK STANTONS of Napa owned a narrow but long waterfront lot on Tomales Bay in West Marin. In order to create a feeling of openness and to place their cabin completely in the marine setting they loved, they arbitrarily decided to locate their house 200 feet out from the road and front property line. Thus resulted this piered walkway and building platform, designed by Wagstaff and McDonald along with the dwelling itself.

A West Marin Retreat In The Water

VIEWED FROM THE water side, the Stanton cabin presents a pleasant beamed effect with cathedral windows facing the east along the private side of the living room. A one-car parking platform can be seen in back at the road's edge. Building out over the water allowed the Stantons an almost completely unhindered use of their little beach. A future boat float and a gangway up to the deck are contemplated. (See pages M-18 and M-19 for additional photos.)

A VACATION CABIN SURROUNDED BY SEA

The Mark Stantons of Napa had several objectives in mind when they asked the San Anselmo firm of Wagstaff and McDonald to design a weekend and vacation cabin for their waterfront lot on Tomales Bay in West Marin.

First and foremost, they wanted a retreat where they could escape the hustle and bustle of every-day sounds and activities—a place of peace and quiet.

They wanted a design and construction that harmonized with those surroundings.

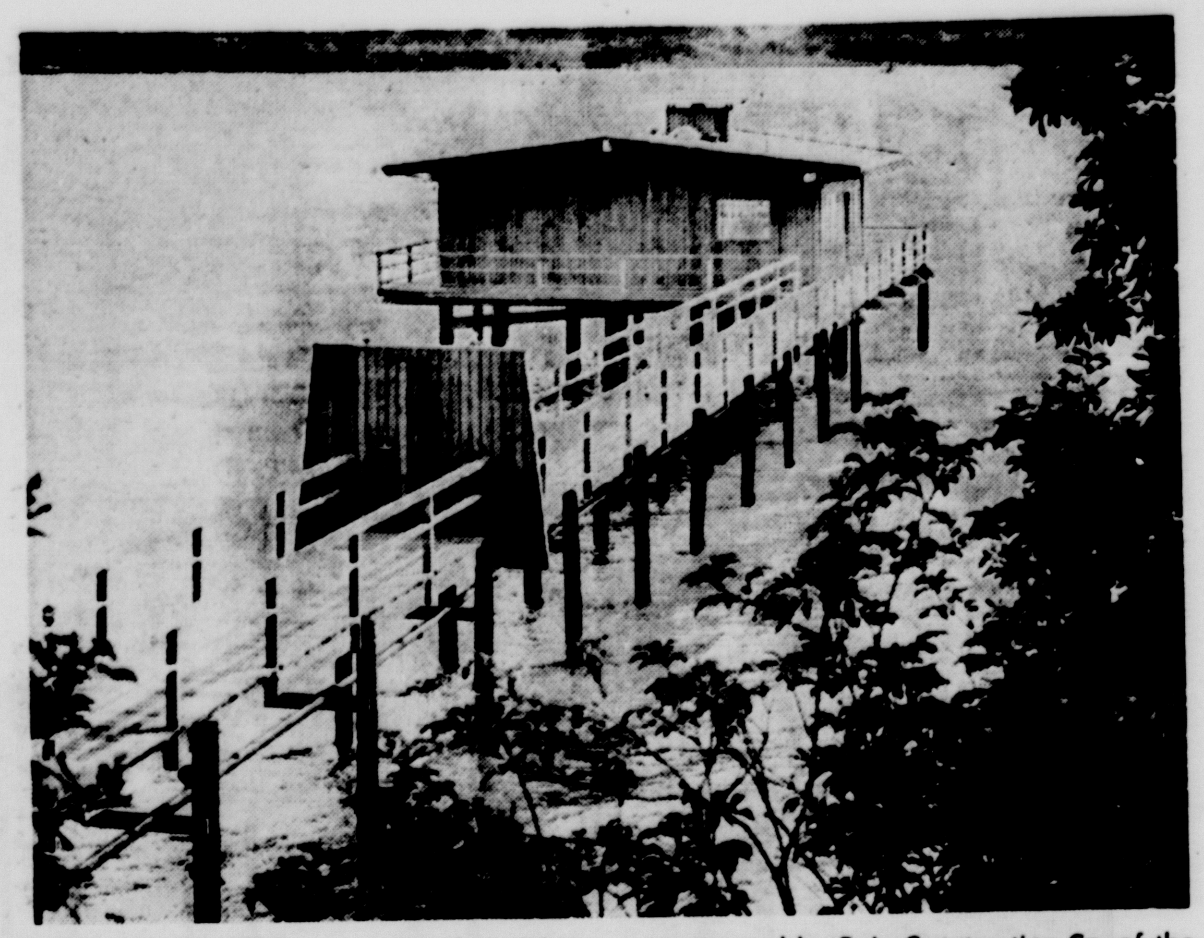
And they wanted to preserve as much as possible of their small but beautiful beach for recreation and scenic purposes.

The Stantons also wanted to create for their long but rather narrow lot a feeling of openness.

It was with these last two objectives especially in mind that it was decided to locate the cabin not just by the bay—but out in the bay.

The structure was set upon a building platform over the water with a piered walkway leading to its entrance. There the Stantons relax and entertain, completely surrounded by the marine environment which they so love. And their beachfront has been left undisturbed and unspoiled.

Bain Construction Co. of San Rafael built the pier and car platform as well as the cabin into which was incorporated all the amenities of city-living with none of its noise and other detriments.



WITH THE OWNERS occupying their West Marin cabin only sporadically, a security type gate midway down the pier was provided for the Mark Stantons. It was designed by Wagstaff and McDonald and constructed by Bain Construction Co. of the same materials and in the same feeling as the cabin itself. The solid wall seen here pushes its shoulder into the prevailing winds.

THE VIEW FROM the private deck of the Stanton cabin shows a width that assures ample entertainment space while affording complete privacy from the land side of the bay. The six-foot gabled overhang effectively controls the sun problem and guarantees against damage by wind-driven rains during winter storms. All exterior material is resawn redwood, treated with a bleaching stain to preage the structure.

ALL THE COMFORTS of the best of city living have been provided for the Mark Stantons in this one-bedroom, living room, kitchen and bath floor plan devised by building designers Wagstaff and McDonald. Heat is provided by thermostatically-controlled electric panel heaters. A Franklin stove adds warmth and a homey touch. Open shelves in the all-electric kitchen allow the lady of the house to enjoy the view. The shelves also lend spaciousness to the living room. (Photos by Ken Molino)

"REALTY VIEWS"

"We are trying to choose a home from among those we've seen," said an attractive woman, Mrs. Mulden. "The choice narrows down to the older, larger home you showed us, and a newer one we located elsewhere. Can you advise us what to do?"

"No one should do the choosing for you," I replied. "But I can suggest a method of deciding which many people use."

William A. Lewis

"Good," she said, "please tell me!"

"Benjamin Franklin said that whenever he faced a tough decision, he'd take a piece of paper, and draw a line down the middle. On one side he'd write the reasons for a certain action, and on the other, the reasons against. Then he'd see which side seemed to weigh the heavier. You might contrast the two homes in this way."

"We'll try it," she said.

The next morning, the Muldens came in. "We followed your suggestion," Mrs. Mulden remarked. "If we had just made a snap decision we might have regretted it. But this way, we're sure we're doing the right thing."

"How'd it turn out?" I asked with growing suspense.

"We've decided on the spacious old home you showed us," she replied.
